Tad Is Dead
Men, After Fifty

"TAD" DORGAN is dead.

Millions know him. He analyzed human nature in pictures as well as Dickens did in words.

Stricken by heart disease, knowing that he might die at any moment, he continued work, sang cheerfully and died in his sleep.

He worked as a boy in a mill to support his mother and younger children. When his right hand was mutilated in an accident, he drew pictures with his left hand.

A Hearst editor asked him to come from San Francisco to New York for double the salary he was paid. Tad replied: "I have my mother and six kid brothers and sisters. I wouldn't leave them."

Invited to bring them all East at Mr. Hearst's expense, he came and established a reputation throughout the whole country.

Prize fight enthusiasts, with half an inch of forehead, or Charles Dana Gibson, with a brow like the dome of St. Peter's, will tell you, "Tad was a great man."

Dr. Daniel J. McCarthy, teacher of medical jurisprudence at the University of Pennsylvania, says: "Nature has not much interest in men after they reach the age of 50." If that is true, nature lacks intelligence.

Goethe was past 70 when he wrote the second part of "Faust."

Galileo was 66 when he published his great work, "Dialogues on the Ptolemaic and Copernican Systems," and was compelled to kneel in public and retract his statement that the earth goes round the sun.

Modern men have so much to learn that it takes about 50 years to get started on the road to things worth while. Man's body may not amount to much after 50, but at 50 the brain begins to work well.

The same learned professor says nature cares nothing about brains or the dominance of any

TRUST NOW AFTER BIG LIGHT CO.

New Bedford, May 3—Another gobble by the power trust is being negotiated in New England, it was learned today on reliable authority.

The company on the market is the New Bedford Gas & Edison Light Co., and purchase of a majority of its stock is being sought by the New England Power Co.

A "voting pool" has been formed by stockholders in an effort to obtain the best possible price for their stock.

The pool is headed by Oliver

Smith Family Life Marked by Simplicity

This intimate story of the unofficial life at the Executive Mansion during Governor Smith's four terms of office was told to Miss Mary Frances O'Brien of the Hearst service by Harry C. Whitehead, steward at the Mansion throughout the Governor's residence there.

By HARRY C. WHITEHEAD

ALFRED EMANUEL SMITH, probably the best known Governor of the State of New York, is no different than Al Smith, ordinary human being, those who were in close contact with the former State executive will tell you.

ALFRED E. SMITH

As steward of the executive mansion for eight years under Governor Smith, I can attest to the truth of that statement. During this period I was given the opportunity of watching the private life of Governor Smith—the home life after the cares of the State were temporarily put aside—and I declare that Governor Smith, despite the honors heaped

THREATEN 3 IN ARSON CASE

The fact that a prominent Braintree woman, Fire Chief Fred A. Tenney of that town, and State Fire Inspector Edward H. Murtagh had received threatening letters was revealed today.

The woman is Mrs. George J. Jessup of Hillcrest ave., East Braintree, star witness in the recent trial of Stephen Libertine of Quincy ave., East Braintree, who was sentenced to six months for burning his barn with intent to defraud an insurance company.

Chief Tenney notified the fire marshal's office when he found suspicious conditions and Inspector Murtagh prosecuted Libertine.

KNOWLTON WIFE PLEA TO ALLEN

While his mother, wife and sister were pleading with Gov. Frank G. Allen for his life, Frederick Hinman, Knowlton, Jr., of Framingham, condemned to die in the electric chair the week of May 12, was removed to the deathhouse in State Prison today.

The three devoted women, Mrs. F. H. Knowlton, Mrs. Hinman Knowlton and Mrs. Janice Bryant, were closeted with the Governor 10 minutes. They were followed into his private office by Rev. W. B. Richards, assistant pastor of Grace Church, Framingham, and Rev. Lawrence H. Blackburn of the Ashland Federated Church.

Then the Governor granted an

DOWD SEES HUGE COST TO CITY

Charge that real estate interests filed before the City Council finance committee with regard to the Exchange st. widening deal were hurled today by Councillor John F. Dowd of Roxbury at a committee hearing on the mayor's request for $500,000 to complete the improvement.

Dowd was objecting to a statement made to the committee today by Chairman Thomas J. Hurley of the street commission, who said he was satisfied the entire widening could be completed within the administration's estimate of $2,000,000.

"In my opinion it will cost a

Prescott, president of the local company and one of the largest individual stockholders.

This voting pool is not designed to give the control of stock to the New England Power Co., but rather to skyrocket the sales price.

The par value of the stock is $25, but lately it has been selling for $110.

Like other utility stocks, the price has been fluctuating and today the level of $110 was reached. Publication of news of the pending negotiations is expected to send the value up a few points, especially as the voting pool members are hopeful of obtaining between $125 and $150 ultimately.

The prospects of an exceptionally high price are said to be good, as two other power organizations are interested in the local company. Names of these companies were not divulged today.

Municipal Power Sold at Low Rate in Canada

New England housekeepers who have been following the Power Trust expose hereabout and who pay high rates and may be more heavily taxed if the power monopolists have their way, will be interested in comparing notes with neighbors in Canada.

Publicly-owned light and power plants have been a success in Canada as they have been in Massachusetts, despite the smoke-screens and propaganda at Concord, Holyoke and elsewhere.

The Canadian and New England situations, so far as power plants and developments are concerned, appear to be far more closely allied than appears on the surface.

The same interests are working in both countries. It is no secret that the International Paper & Power Co. has important holdings in Canada. Archibald R. Graustein, president of that $600,000,000 corporation, testified before the Federal Trade Commission in Washington a few days ago that he had reorganized newsprint companies in Canada.

CUT RATE IN WINNIPEG

The same general plan of absorption of smaller and independent light and power companies is said to be under way beyond our northern boundary. In fact, the situation in Canada is said to present close relation as to its bearing on utility affairs here.

In Winnipeg, Manitoba, with a population of little more than 300,000, the city fathers installed a municipal plants some years ago and clipped the price of domestic light and power from 10 or 12 cents to three cents per kilowat hour.

The municipal plant found it possible to sell electricity for household lighting as low as three cents per kilowatt hour and to cut the rate to one cent per kilowatt hour for household power such as cooking, refrigeration, cleaning, etc.

ALSO GIVES REBATES

In addition to the low rates the Winnipeg municipal plant gives a substantial rebate for prompt payment of bills—10 per cent on one-year contracts, 15 per cent on five-year contracts and 20 per cent on 10-year contracts.

Quite a contrast to the rates charged by the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Boston and some other New England companies. The Edison Co. charges 8½ cents per kilowat hour, 100 square feet of floor, for domestic uses, the first two hours, five cents for 10 hours, and three cents for all in excess of 70 hours.

Unlike the Winnipeg companies, the Edison Co. doesn't distinguish between light and power service for domestic consumption, charging the flat price for both, nor does it give rebates for either household or commercial power. The commercial rate is 8½ cents for the first 1000 kilowat hours, eight cents for the next 2000, 7½ for the next 2500, and for all in excess of the latter figure 5½ cents.

In the city of Hamilton, Ont., the base rates for power are 1.5 per kilowat hour for the first 50 hours' use per month of the maximum demand; 1 cent per kilowat hour for the second 50 hours' use per month.

TORONTO RATES

In St. Thomas, Ont., a standard domestic rate is in force—3.5 cents per month service charge, 3 cents per kilowat hour for the first 60 hours, and 1 cent for all in excess of that, plus a 10 per cent prompt payment discount.

THREATENED

It was learned that postal inspectors are co-operating with police in the investigation of the letters, and arrests are expected.

An investigation is also being made of receipt of anonymous letters by Representative Horace Cahill, a selectman, having to do with affairs of the town. These letters, it is said, are not of a threatening nature.

19 ARE DEAD IN BERLIN RIOTS

Berlin, May 3—Nineteen persons, several of them women, have been killed in one of the fiercest series of riots in the history of Berlin.

Following a brief lull in the battle between Communists and police in the Wedding district, violence again broke out this afternoon and two men and two women were killed. One person died in the hospital from wounds received in the May Day rioting.

Fresh disorders broke out in the Hermannstrasse, principal street of this suburb of Neukoelln. Shots were suddenly fired on the police from windows and stones were hurled from house tops, while steady stream of Communists poured in from adjacent streets.

Most of them were armed with clubs and brass knuckles. They charged the police, who fired shots in the air. The attack soon grew so hot the police began to shoot to wound.

This checked the Communists, who took shelter in nearby houses. Police cars filled with emergency squads dashed about, firing machine guns.

Lies About Exchange St. Deal Charged

whole lot more," said Dowd. "I never would have voted for the original Exchange st. order if I had known what was going on on the inside. I am convinced the real estate experts who appeared before us lied, for they told different stories when they were under oath before the Finance Commission.

BURDEN ON CURLEY

"I believe this proposition will cost more than the estimate and the burden will be on the incoming administration—under James M. Curley."

Chairman Hurley explained that in addition to the $1,750,000 already appropriated and spent, the $500,000 now asked was needed, plus $350,000, which was to be taken from regular street construction fund for purchase of the remaining lots.

These lots are three in number and extend from a point halfway between State st. and Dock sq. to the square. The owners are Albert R. Whittier, Arthur W. Kray and Anna M. Barry.

There was considerable discussion among committeemen as to whether the Good Government Association, which has criticized the roject, should be recognized to the extent of being asked to send a representative to tell the committee what it knows.

"HOLLOW IN TIME"

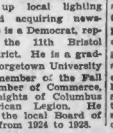
It was finally left to the chairman, William A. Motley, as to whether representatives of the G. G. A., the Finance Commission and the Boston Real Estate Exchange should be quizzed. And Motley said:

"I intend to call everybody in Boston who is interested, including these three organizations and a number of real estate experts. Unfortunately, we cannot summon them, but we can ask them to do their civic duty and tell us their opinions.

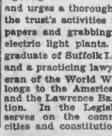
"The city council has to carry the bag, bear the burden, in these matters, and so let these individuals come in and do their shouting before this thing is done and not after it is all over and the deal consummated."

LEGISLATIVE HONOR ROLL

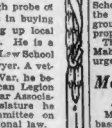
REP. JEREMIAH J. HEALY of Natick, representing the Sixth Middlesex House District, favors the principle of the municipal light bill and other legislation to curb the power octopus in this State. He serves on the powerful committee on rules and also on the committee on military affairs. By occupation Healy is a foreman. He has served his district since 1921. Popular in local affairs, Maj. Healy served in the 181st Infantry, M. N. G., during the war. He is a member of the Elks, K. of C. and A. O. H.



REP. THOMAS SMITH, JR., of Fall River, is another legislator alert to the threat of the big power interests. He is with the principle of the municipal lighting bill and favors a probe of the trust's activities in grabbing up local lighting plants and acquiring newspapers. He is a Democrat, representing the 11th Bristol House District. He is a graduate of Georgetown University and is a member of the Fall River Chamber of Commerce, Eagles, Knights of Columbus and American Legion. He served on the local Board of Aldermen from 1924 to 1928.



REP. THOMAS J. LANE of Lawrence, representing the 6th Essex House District, is another Democrat keenly alive to the threat of the big power combine in Massachusetts. He favors the principle of the municipal lighting bill and urges a thorough probe of the trust's activities in buying papers and grabbing up local electric light plants. He is a graduate of Suffolk Law School and a practicing lawyer. A veteran of the World War, he belongs to the American Legion and the Lawrence Bar Association. In the Legislature he serves on the committees on cities and constitutional law.



PLEAD WITH ALLEN FOR KNOWLTON

the feature of which was the charge that Dist. Atty. Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County had withheld important evidence.

Present at the hearing, in addition to the attorneys, was Asst. Atty-Gen. Putnam and Chairman of the Patrol Board Frank A. Brooks. Putnam brought out the fact that the petition was for a full pardon on the ground of innocence, but Attorney Alpert indicated he would file a second petition for commutation of sentence.

In opening Atty. Alpert said there was a conflict of opinion as to what the governor should concern himself with, and mentioned the action of former Governor Fuller in the Sacco-Vanzetti case in reviewing the evidence.

Gov. Allen, somewhat sharply, suggested that Alpert confine himself to the case in hand. Alpert then went on to say he would show Knowlton was not the only person to see the victim, Miss Marguerite Isabelle Stewart alive.

TESTIMONY OF RAND

He referred to the testimony of Witness Rand, on the way to Framingham had lost his way and on Ash st., Concord, sought directions from occupants of a parked automobile.

Later he said, Rand claimed the occupants of the parked car were Knowlton and a weeping girl, but according to Atty. Alpert the witness gave conflicting testimony as to the type of automobile in which they were sitting.

"If Rand was lying at the trial," said Attorney Alpert, "if he saw a couple, then it was not the defendant he saw."

The testimony of the witness Lane, refuted that of Rand in that Lane claimed he saw a man and woman answering the description of the defendant and victim, standing near a roadster in Beverly.

Attorney Alpert then referred to the testimony of Mrs. Kennedy of the Beverly school where Miss Stewart was employed.

Mrs. Kennedy, he said, at 11:30 at night heard loud talking outside the school. She looked out and saw Miss Stewart and a man get into a large black touring car and drive away.

Alpert charged that the story of Mrs. Kennedy was withheld by Bushnell because it did not fit the theory of the prosecution.

The lawyer spoke of Mrs. Olmstead, Worcester storekeeper, who said Miss Stewart went to her store on Friday, the day of the murder, and left in a large touring car.

TELL OF TOURING CAR.

Henry Smith and his brother Leonard, driving by the place where the body was later found, saw a large touring car parked on the left-hand side of the road, which cut across in front of them and disappeared, he said.

Governor Allen asked if all these facts had been presented with the petition for a new trial, and Alpert said they had.

The lawyer then took up the case of Juror Howard, a magazine salesman, who he said, after being summoned as a juror, went to Framingham and talked with numerous persons about the Knowlton case.

"In the face of such evidence," said Alpert, "it is impossible to say this juror was unbiased."

Asked by the governor if he gave these facts to the judge, Atty. Alpert said the judge was not interested.

In response to another question he said he did not have the facts in time to challenge the juror.

Alpert apologized for placing a burden on the shoulders of Governor Allen, in replying to which he said:

"I hope I'm not shirking my duty."

Atty. Driscoll, who added to Atty. Alpert's statement, was asked by the governor if he believed Knowlton guilty.

"I do from his story," was the reply. "If I knew about the testimony of Mr. McDaniels and Mrs. Kennedy of the Beverly institute in time, I believe the verdict would have been different."

Knowlton, convicted of the slaying of Miss Stewart, was taken from East Cambridge jail in a closed automobile by Sheriff John R. Fairbairn and Deputy Sheriff Aivah Baker.

He was received by Warden James L. Hogsett and Deputy Warden Herman Godendorf, and after being registered shook hands with the sheriff and his deputy, thanking them for their kindness and courtesy to him while he was in East Cambridge jail.

Council Balks at New Health Site

The finance committee of the City Council today voted "ought not to pass, without prejudice," Mayor Nichols' loo norder of $350,000 for a new health department headquarters building in the Fenway.

The measure was opposed by representatives of Tufts Medical School, Forsyth Dental School and the Museum of Fine Arts on the ground that it would injure their property and the park system.

The Mayor and Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, health commissioner, urged its passage.

Congressmen Suggest Anti-Trust Legislation to Stop Power Barons

Widespread public interest and comment on the revelation of newspaper ownership by the International Paper & Power Company is being manifested.

Congressmen suggested the possibility that anti-trust legislation, which had supposedly exerted a benign influence on capitalistic combination in the last two decades, might require further serious attention, in the light of the Federal Trade Commission's recent discovery.

Comment by three of the New York representatives in Congress follows:

REPRESENTATIVE F. H. LaGUARDIA — Ownership of the newspapers in this country is a matter of concern to all citizens. We have in the constitution a guarantee of a free press. That guarantee is directed against restrictions by sumptuary law and undue exercise of police power.

This Government likewise was organized to protect its individual citizens from an autocratic rule. When we found combinations of capital becoming sufficiently powerful to exert an autocratic control over individual activities, we adopted laws to restrict them.

The same danger presents itself anew when it is revealed that a paper and power corporation has acquired part ownership in thirteen newspapers.

REPRESENTATIVE LORING M. BLACK—Information, showing that any large combination of capital engaged in commercial or industrial enterprise in this country has extended its sphere of operation by acquiring an interest in thirteen newspapers, is a matter that requires the serious attention of the public.

People may have been lulled to sleep in the belief that there are no longer any "trusts." There are laws against combinations in restraint of trade and there is protection against monopoly.

The testimony before the Federal Trade Commission, that a corporation engaged in the paper and power business is also a factor of importance in the publication of a number of newspapers, suggests the possibility that we may have to consider still further the control of "combinations" in business.

Certainly the average individual does not want news of the proceedings of Congress, or of the administration of public affairs in his state and city supplied to him by the company which furnishes him electric light or gas.

REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM I. SIROVICH—It is distinctly contrary to the policy under which American institutions have been built up that we should allow control to center in the hands of a few. That danger was what caused the widespread anti-trust agitation of a few years ago. Trusts were dissolved and new corporations were restricted.

It was quite surprising to those engaged in legislation to learn that a corporation organized to engage in the manufacture of paper and the necessary development of power should have embarked in the part ownership of 13 newspapers.

If such a condition were carried to an extreme and one large corporation engaged in transportation, power supply or any other public utility could control a majority of the newspapers, we might soon see what has been considered public policy dictated largely by private interests.

Sound More Warnings on Power-Ruled Press

SEEING a menace to the freedom of the press and its reflection of public opinion in the United States if newspapers are to pass into the hands of big corporations, the leading dailies from the Atlantic to the Pacific today continued to publish warnings to the public.

Excerpts from editorials dealing with the disclosures before the Federal Trade Commission follow:

NEW YORK EVENING WORLD—

Not so long ago the country was interested in the announcement that one of the leading newspapers of Boston had been acquired by the International Paper and Power Company, which is part of the power group that had been exposed in some disreputable propaganda.

The president of the company now appears before the Federal Trade Commission with the admission that his people have acquired 13 newspapers. We know of no way of preventing the power propagandists from acquiring any newspapers they can buy, but it is important from the viewpoint of the public that it know who is in possession.

If these papers, owned by the propagandists, engage in the defense of their lobby plans of the Power Trust, it is necessary for the public to know of it, to the end that it may make proper allowance.

The explanation given by the president of the company will be considered by the public in the light of what it knows about the methods of the power trust. Last winter it learned a great deal, and what it learned was calculated to cause serious concern to the thoughtful. The discovery that professors in colleges and universities are on the secret payroll of these interests, giving lectures, presumably in their capacity as professors but really as employes of the power crowd, was more than astonishing—it was disgusting. The discovery that the power people were actually furnishing public schools with "literature" to be used in instructing the young was the revelation of an infamous thing.

Along with the newspapers owned, the Power Trust makes use of the radio, and no one now knows what professors are on the payroll.

NEW YORK TELEGRAM—

The daily newspaper is an institution of general as distinct from class circulation. By its very nature therefore it must be single in purpose to be effective. Its mission is to serve all the public and not just part. Its range of influence is in direct ratio to its freedom from entangling alliances.

The history of newspaper failures is quickly dotted with those which have violated that principle.

Why?

Simply because it is not within the range of human nature for a newspaper publisher successfully to serve two masters.

NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE—An important issue was raised by the testimony of Mr. Graustein, president of the International Paper and Power Company, before the Federal Trade Commission at Washington. It is of great moment to newspapers. It is of no less concern to the general public. It is whether a public utility or any other great corporation may with propriety obtain a considerable financial interest in a newspaper.

We are convinced that such investments are strongly against the public interest. The independence of a newspaper's policy constitutes its greatest opportunity for public service. When that independence is compromised in whatever degree, by financial influence or otherwise, the loss to its readers and to its community is grave.

3 CHILDREN HIT BY TRUCK

Three children were injured by a loaded furniture van, minus a driver, which rolled down Strathcona rd. and Brinsley st., Dorchester, today and into a vacant lot near Geneva ave.

The injured: Edward Newpol, 13, of Lorraine st., concussion of the brain; Harold Aronson, 12, of Rocester st., abrasions; Ruby Bronstein, 4, of Castlegate rd., bruises.

The boys were taken to City Hospital in an auto by Samuel Leavett of Brunswick st. The girl ran home badly frightened.

The truck was at a house on Strathcona rd. while the driver, Joseph J. Nugent, Jr., of Mills ave., Revere, was making a delivery, according to police who said they would inspect the machine's brakes.

'NOT GUILTY!' IS HER PLEA

South Paris, Me., May 3—Sobbing bitterly, almost in a state of collapse and so weak that she became hysterical during the court proceedings, Mrs. Anna Mazell Welch, 26, today formally pleaded not guilty of the murder of Elihu W. Turner, aged farmer; waived a hearing, and was held for the grand jury.

"I am not guilty," she sobbed. "I never killed anybody. He was the best friend I had."

County Attorney William J. Flanagan charges that she murdered Turner at Hartford, Me. Turner's body was found in the ruins of his burned barn. Attys. Harold Redding and H. M. Shaw defended her.

Doris, her five-month-old daughter, and Glorianna, aged 4, were both in court during the time their mother was being arraigned.

FRAUD IS FATAL TO ALIEN

Worry, heartaches—and finally death—were discovered today by Boston Evening American investigators as results of the ring of alien runners secretly under investigation by Washington officials assigned to Boston.

A glaring case reached the civil session of municipal court, it was learned, but never reached a hearing on account of the death of the victim, who was attempting to retrieve nearly $1000 he had paid to get his prospective wife into the country.

PAID RETAINER

Papers in the case showed a large payment as a retainer for a downtown attorney and "alien adviser," receipted for on a form that indicated payment in full for the "service and expenses."

Subsequent payments were demanded and paid when the victim's protests were met with an intimidation that both victim and runner were equally guilty of attempting to evade the immigration laws.

STARVED SELF TO PAY

Friends of the man, who lived in a suburb of Boston, stated he worried and fretted and even starved himself while he was in the clutches of the runner.

The story of a vigil by the victim outside the office of the attorney was told by one friend, a muttered threat of vengeance on his lips. Barely a week later death relieved him of orders to "dick in more money or go to jail."

The bride-to-be was credited with having furnished some of the money as the payments went on from her home in Southern Europe. To this day she has examined there and the records of the case show that not even an application for the permit to enter Canada—the point of the smuggling operations—was ever made.

Another phase of the vast ring was revealed to the investigators that disclosed an employe in the office of a political leader as one member of the huge ring.

POLITICIAN IN RING.

The politician, it was learned, is planning a trip to Washington early next week, his first visit to the capital in 10 years.

The trip was planned after the office assistant had been closely questioned by officials.

Since the first disclosures in this newspaper of the workings of the ring, pressure has been brought to bear on hundreds of victims by the ones involved in the "mixup" with the result that they have fled to hiding places in fear of the soundless threats of the tormentors.

Many more, however, have told their stories and have been relieved to find that their fears of nearly five years have been unfounded.

40 DEAD, 100 HURT IN STORM

New York, May 3 (AP)—Storms that took a toll of 40 victims half of the United States for three days moved into Mexico today and threatened to sweep the middle Rocky mountains, leaving only the Southwest and the North Pacific coast free of gales and rain and snow.

The storms have taken 46 lives in the last 48 hours and caused heavy property damage. The injured exceed 100.

Tornadoes and severe storms have taken 34 lives in the south and the middlewest. A hurricane swept the island of Haiti, resulting in one death, and in Maryland and New York four others were killed in the collapse of a house and a railroad wreck caused by washouts.

MA BANS GIRL, 14, WEDDING

The mother of the boy involved today blocked the proposed marriage of 14-year-old Kathleen M. Perry of Cambridge st., East Cambridge, and Donald F. Keith, 18, of Harvard st., Boston.

She appeared at City Hall and informed Assistant City Registrar Jeremiah Leary that under no circumstances would she consent to a license being issued. As the boy is over 18 consent of his parents is absolutely necessary, Leary said.

The girl had filed intentions at Cambridge City Hall and announcement had been made that the Rev. Antonio J. Pimental, rector of St. Anthonys Portuguese Church, would perform the ceremony.

Hoover's Dogs Are Keeping Him Awake

Washington, May 3 (INS)—The galaxy of dogs that now have their home at the White House have been disturbing President Hoover's sleep.

Today carpenters started erection of a row of kennels within the grounds, but as far removed as possible from the mansion.

CARDINAL LEADS HIS PILGRIMS TO SHRINES

POPE RECEIVES BOSTONIANS TOMORROW

By ELIAS McQUAID
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Rome, May 3 (By Cable)—With Cardinal O'Connell accompanying, Boston and New England pilgrims today visited a number of historic shrines and basilicas as part of a tour of the Eternal City.

Through their visits to the shrines, the Pilgrims obtained the special blessings accorded as a result of the holy year proclamation in celebration of Pope Pius' sacredotal jubilee.

The first place visited was ancient St. Peter's, where the Pilgrim's Hymn, composed by Cardinal O'Connell for the Boston pilgrimage in 1926, was sung.

SEE CATACOMBS, TOO.

Then the Pilgrims visited the basilica of St. Mary Major, better known as the basilica of St. Mary of the Snows, and the basilica of John Lateran. In each of these places, also, the Pilgrims' Hymn was sung.

In the afternoon the Americans motored to the Church of San Clemente, of which Cardinal O'Connell is titular bishop; the Coliseum, the old and new Appian ways, St. Paul's, outside the walls, the catacombs and other places of interest.

The visits to the basilicas of St. Peter's and St. Mary's will be continued daily for five days, with the Cardinal leading all the visits.

ARTICLES TO BE BLESSED

During the last few days, tourists have been purchasing a large number of religious articles to be carried to their audience with the Pope, definitely arranged for tomorrow afternoon. On that occasion, the articles will be blessed by the Holy Father.

On Sunday the Pilgrims will attend a special mass, with a reception at the American College planned for later in the day. For the 60 priests in the party, a special luncheon has been arranged.

The departure for home will be made Tuesday from Naples, the intervening time being spent by the pilgrims in visiting points of interest and in shopping.

RICH MAN RIDES HIS OWN

Michael B. Connolly, multi-millionaire of Nahant, prefers a bicycle to an auto while attending to business. Photo shows him riding to work on his trusty wheel. He has a few other ancient bikes at home and holds them priceless. Twice this week a thief has stolen his prized cycles. One of the bikes has been recovered; police are seeking the other.

LINDY AND ANNE ON SECRET RIDE

Englewood, N. J., May 3 (AP)—Col Lindbergh and his fiancee, Miss Anne Morrow, were chuckling today over how they eluded newspapermen to enjoy an undisturbed automobile ride of 11 hours over secluded Jersey roads.

Arriving at the Morrow home in a sedan during a temporary lapse of vigilance by news and camera men, the colonel with Miss Morrow departed again at 1:20 in the afternoon and did not return until 11:15 o'clock last night.

Where they went remained undisclosed.

SMALLPOX IN WHITMAN

Three cases of smallpox in one family in Whitman, and one case in South Hanson were reported today by state health authorities.

The patients are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Thomas of Whitman and their four-weeks-old baby, and Mrs. Forest Turner of South Hanson.

Bertha Nevell of Brockton, who was discovered to have the disease yesterday, was found to have been a recent visitor at the home of the Thomases and also at the home of Mrs. Turner, who is her sister.

Officials say that the disease was carried to the Thomas household by relatives from Middleboro, the central location of the present epidemic, and that the Brockton girl contracted it on her visit there and carried it to her sister.

MRS. HILL FREE IN FRAUD CASE

Mrs. Myra C. Hill was found not guilty today by a jury in Suffolk Superior Court, where she stood trial charged with larceny of $37,000 from Boston residents who invested in Florida land.

The jury was out two hours. Mrs. Hill had denied she told any of the investors that the land was entirely paid for with the money they gave her and that no further sums would be asked for.

Mayor Conwell Won't Run Again

Leon M. Conwell, serving the fourth year of his second term as mayor, this afternoon, at a luncheon of the Somerville Women's Republican Club announced he would retire from office at the end of the year.

Adventure Trail of Cambridge Girl Is Ended in Cell

New York, May 3 (INS)—The adventure undertaken several months ago by Miss Alice Thayer, 22, claiming to be a member of a reputable East Cambridge (Mass.) family, when she left home to "see life" with Edward Hoyt, 33, ended today with both of them prisoners in Jefferson Market court.

Hoyt, who has a record of four arrests, three of them on narcotic charges, became the first prisoner to face the bar under the new narcotic act, passed four weeks ago and making it a felony to sell drugs here. A maximum of 10 years imprisonment is provided.

Both were arrested after Hoyt is alleged to have sold two "decks" of heroin to a policewoman. Three other "decks," according to Detectives Moffatt and Buckley of the narcotic squad, were found in Hoyt's room.

Hoyt was arraigned before Magistrate Smith on a charge of selling narcotics and held without bail for the grand jury. Miss Thayer was charged with acting in concert with Hoyt in the sale and was held in $5,000 bail for the grand jury.

In addition to this, Miss Thayer was found guilty on a charge of vagrancy and remanded to jail until Monday pending investigation. She pleaded for her freedom, a chance to return to her home in East Cambridge and an opportunity to take a cure for the drug habit.

MILLIONAIRE IS AGAIN A VICTIM OF BIKE THIEF

A tale of two ancient bikes, stolen from their multi-millionaire owner who ensured them as his choicest possessions, was unfolded today in Lynn police headquarters.

One of the bicycles, worth five dollars as junk but priceless to Michael B. Connolly of Nahant, was stolen a few days ago. Today he has that bike again in his possession, but his joy in its recovery is dimmed by theft of another and more ancient bike.

The first bike was stolen when the owner rode to a lawyer's office on Exchange st., Lynn. It vanished as the two men talked business. Connolly at once reported the theft to the police and the whole force was ordered out.

While the owner was ordering a new bike Ford Mellon, a Lynn bicycle mechanic, said he had seen the stolen bike on Monroe st. Connolly went to the spot, found the bicycle and took it home.

Happy in its recovery the millionaire today invited a reporter down in the cellar of his home to show him another old bike stored there as its retirement after its long service. There a shocking surprise awaited him.

The second old bike was gone! The owner has again asked police to start a bicycle hunt.

Plane Lands in Mud

Watertown, N. Y., May 3—The Question Mark, in which Congressman James W. Mitchell of Michigan is making an inspection of army forts and barracks, is marooned at the airport here.

TEACHER FREED FROM JAIL TO WED

Worcester, May 3—Cupid fairly guffawed at locksmiths today when he got Marie Daley, 22, out of the lockup and united her in marriage in the clerk of courts' office to George T. Deyette, 21-year-old salesman.

Having been in custody since April 23 without telling anything noon, herself, the girl broke her silence today before Judge Utley and said she stole from department stores to get clothes for her wedding and articles for a home, but had returned practically everything.

She also told her real name for the first time and disclosed that she was a teacher in Providence until a month ago when she came here to marry Deyette.

Judge Utley had a license issued and granted a waiver of the five-day law. Court Clerk Henry Y. Simpson tied the knot. The charge of larceny standing against the bride was continued until tomorrow when it may be placed on file, and in the meantime she is free on her own recognizance.

Report of $10,000,000 Harvard Fund Denied

Denial of the report of a $10,000,000 athletic fund endowment for the Harvard Athletic association today was made by an official of the association. He said the committee on regulation of athletic sports had never asked the university administration for any kind of an endowment, nor had the authorities made any suggestion of this type.

Hit-Runner Gets Jail

Trapped through his registration number, Samuel Stone of Washington st., Norwood, was taken to Dedham court today as an alleged hit-and-run driver and sentenced to three months in the house of correction. He appealed and was held in $500.

Stone is alleged to have driven the car that struck John Carey of Bryant st., Dedham, last night, in High st., Dedham, and then fled.

BABY, 3, SAVED BY HIS HAIR

By the hair of his head Albert Pinard, 3, of Dudley st., Chelsea, escaped drowning in a sewer today while playing in Eastern ave., near his home.

The sewer, filled with eight feet of water from last night's rain, was open during excavating by street department workers—and the baby walked in.

Robert Connery, a city worker, heard his scream and ran to the sewer, walked into the water, seized the boy by the hair and pulled him out. He was taken home after treatment.

HARVARD ADDS TO PENSIONS

Reduction in pensions to 160 Harvard college professors, effected recently by the Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching, will be made up by the Harvard Corporation, it was revealed today.

The reduction has been made because of the rapid depletion of the pension fund provided for by the late Andrew Carnegie. Two thousand, eight hundred professors are affected and the reduction will amount to between $16,000,000 and $17,000,000.

Harvard professors have received $1,411,397 from the foundation.

Open Season Is on for Pond Fishermen

Fishermen who specialize on the pond variety rather than on trout are now in their element. On April 1 the open season started on yellow perch, and on May 1 on pickerel and pike perch. Open season dates for other varieties, announced by Director of Fisheries and Game William C. Adams are: May 31, northern pike or muscallonge; June 1, white perch and smelt; June 15, horned pout; July 1, black bass, blue gills, sunfish, calico bass.

WINS LENIENCY BY SAD STORY

In Lynn court it is customary to impose a fine of $100 on a first offender convicted of driving while drunk, but today James Malley, 65, of Fond st., Lynn, was given instead a one-month suspended sentence.

The suspended sentence was imposed after Malley recited that: He has no money to pay a fine; he has been compelled to sell his house to pay hospital bills for his blind wife; he has lost his job as chauffeur through his arrest; he has an incurable disease.

Intoxication Wins Divorce for Wife

Judge Arthur W. Dolan of the Suffolk County Probate Court today granted a divorce to Esther B. Leonard of Marion from Easton Leonard on the ground of gross and confirmed habits of intoxication. Mrs. Leonard was given the custody of John Barton Leonard, 12, and Rosamond Leonard, 14

Be a Dumbbell Fan, 'Perfect Cop's' Tip

It came out today that Special Officer Bernard H. McGinnis, head of the "road squad" of the police headquarters liquor vigilantes, became a "100 per cent perfect cop" through daily association with dumbbells.

"Barney" won his title from the Civil Service Commission "Bunion Board" and he is the first to be designated a 100 per cent perfect specimen of gendarme.

"I did it with dumbbells," said the officer, today before starting out along the roads with his men to apprehend liquor runners. Then he explained that he credits his physical condition to morning and evening exercise with 25-pound dumbbells.

He also is careful of his diet, he says, but he declined smilingly to reveal the makeup of his meals.

McGinnis is 32, and below is a comparison of his weight and measurements with those of William G. Elliott of Boston, who, in 1919 at Atlantic City, was chosen the "perfect man."

ELLIOTT.		McGINNIS.

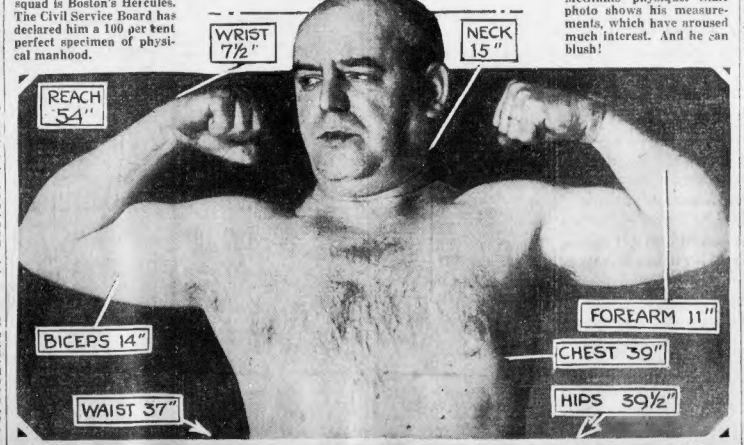
Enforcing Law in Boston Keeps Him Just Perfect

Special Officer Bernard McGinnis of headquarters vice squad is Boston's Hercules. The Civil Service Board has declared him a 100 per cent perfect specimen of physical manhood.



Physicians over the State are interested and will study McGinnis' physique. Staff photo shows his measurements, which have aroused much interest. And he can blush!

FLED TO STREET

Seven families ran to the street at the height of the storm as flames, started by a bolt of lighting, raced through the upper floors of 484 Blue Hill ave., Roxbury. Julia Gadless (inset) fled from the top floor. Marion Liberman also escaped the flames. (Boston Evening American staff photo.)

SHEEHAN TRIAL FINISHED

The trial of Patrolman Jeremiah Sheehan before a board of police captains as a result of his arrest for alleged drunken driving ended today at police headquarters with a summing up by Sheehan's counsel, John P. Feeney.

The decision of the trial board was sealed and turned over to Police Commissioner Wilson, who will decide whether he concurs or disagrees with the decision. If he follows usual custom, it probably will be a number of days before the decision is announced as to whether Sheehan is removed or retained in the department.

The court case against the member of police headquarters liquor squad will be resumed next week.

Act on Auto Insurance

The House Ways and Means Committee today reported the resolve calling for an investigation of compulsory automobile insurance by a special committee during the recess of the Legislature.

ARRAIGN BOY, 13 IN DRUNK CASE

They almost had to dig into the cradle today to arraign an alleged drunken driver in Newton Court.

He was Michael Farina, 13, of Ridge ave., North Cambridge, the youngest ever to face that charge in Newton. Judge Weston placed him on probation for a year and warned that violation would result in matriculation at the Lyman school.

Mike's father, John Farina, was arraigned on the same charge, but was acquitted when no witness could be found to say he was in the car. A charge of drunkenness against the father was filed, but he was ordered to pay $40 damage to Patrolman William H. Dow Long's uniform cost.

The boy had been drinking wine on Sunday, April 14, it was testified, and backed into a parked car in Clinton st., Newton.

Building Boom in Newton Started

The month of April witnessed a boom in building operations in Newton following the usual winter lull, according to the monthly report of the public buildings department.

The first three months of this year found the volume of building far behind that of the same period in 1928 but the past month brought the total valuation of building permits issued this year to within $200,000 of the total for the corresponding period in 1928

The total valuation on May 1 a year ago was $3,053,368 while this year it was $2,853,551

New Traffic Board Considers Changes

Pending the approval of the civil service, Chairman William A. Fisher, recently appointed by Mayor Nichols to head the newly created Boston traffic commission together with the other members of the board, is going over items for the budget for the fiscal year. The painters in the public works department and the police department will be transferred on the city payrolls to the traffic commission department and will be housed under one roof in the near future.

WIFE SOBS OUT LOVE FOR SON; TELLS OF GUN

Whether an object Mrs. Helen L. Eldridge of Newton said she found in her husband's suits was a girl's hairband, to keep unruly bobbed locks in place, or only a man's straw hat band, became the subject of an interchange between her and Atty. Hirsch at the Eldridges' divorce trial in Middlesex Probate Court today.

Mrs. Eldridge said she tried the ribbon on her husband's hat and found it would not fit, and she denied having bought it herself.

Shown a photograph of herself in a group snapshot taken in 1925, she halted further questioning by saying her husband, Joseph L. Eldridge, was present "and may even have taken the picture himself."

Miss Carrie Carr Hoyt, part owner of a Huntington ave., dancing school, testified she did not recall Eldridge as a pupil. Eldridge had testified he was advised at this school to go to the State Ballroom for practice, thus accounting for his presence at the latter place.

SHE WANTED PISTOL.

Earlier Mrs. Eldridge had testified she had once applied for a permit to carry a revolver.

She said she made the application to the Newton police chief, as she wanted a weapon in her home, but did not get it because he was too busy.

The statement was made in connection with her denial that she had ever threatened the negro butler Samuda that he would be "bumped off" unless he kept out of the case.

She broke down and wept in telling of her care of their boy, declaring, if awarded his custody, "I give him every blessing life can hold. I think that health and happiness are the two greatest. He has those now."

Mrs. Eldridge, under re-direct examination, testified she has no wealth, that her father is a scientific man with no independent means, as he said and that no property except the house in West Newton, which is in her name. This testimony was given in connection with custody of the boy.

WANTS HER BOY.

She said she had always taken care of the boy since he was six weeks old, and they were very affectionate to one another. Testifying she had no affection for men friends, and no possible marriage in mind, Mrs. Eldridge began to weep.

With tears streaming down her face, she said if awarded the custody she would keep the boy in the Newton home, where she said he has many friends, and the church, Sunday school and grammar school are the best that can be procured.

At the conclusion of the re-direct examination Mrs. Eldridge wiped her eyes and asked for a glass of water. Attorney William A. Hirsh then took up the re-cross-examination.

GIVES BOY GUN; IS FINED $100

Mother and son were in Newton Court today because the 12-year-old boy was alleged to have fired his rifle into a neighbor's yard.

The mother, Mrs. Louis Hale, 31, of Wessex rd., Newton Centre, was fined $100 and placed on probation for firearms to a minor under 16, and was ordered to pay $15 for damage to the trunk of the car of Charles B. Clifford of Irving st., Newton Center.

The boy, Jesse Hale, Jr., who was charged with discharging firearms across the property of another, was placed on probation for a year.

When the defence maintained that the wild bullet was fired by another boy, Judge Thomas Weston ordered that the second boy be summoned into court.

Young Hale and the other youth were at target practice in Hale's back yard, according to testimony, when a bullet from a .22-calibre rifle went wild, tore into the garage of Clifford and shattered the windshield of his car.

Man Cop Shot at Is Held in Theft

In court today on crutches as a result of a hip wound inflicted by a Boston policeman, Frederick O'Brien of Union st., Charlestown, was held in $2000 by Judge Parmenter on a charge of larceny of an automobile, as was a co-defendant, William Picardi of Chapman st. They waived examination and were held for the grand jury.

Patrolman Rizzo of Hanover st. division discovered them in an alleged stolen car on April 1, and when O'Brien fled, Rizzo fired twice in the air and then once at his quarry. Both men were found at Picardi's house, where O'Brien's wound was being dressed.

Music Week Is Indorsed by Allen

Governor Allen today issued a statement endorsing National Music Week, which this year will be observed from May 5 to May 11.

"Any movement that has for its purpose the popularization of music deserves the highest commendation," he stated in part.

MOVIE'S 'IDEAL COUPLE' PART

Los Angeles, May 3 (INS)—A movieland marriage that lasted 13 years has ended, friends disclosed today, with separation of Douglas MacLean and the former Faith Cole. They were considered one of filmdom's ideally mated couples.

MacLean is living at his Long Beach Club and spending much of his time aboard his yacht. Mrs MacLean is secluded in the Beverly Hills residence.

"I have not been instructed to file suit for divorce," said Walter Burke, MacLean's attorney. "Any statement will have to come from Mrs. MacLean."

Rushing Repairs on Liner in N. Y. Crash

New York, May 3 (INS)—Repairs were being rushed on the Spanish Royal Mail liner Cristobal Colon today to enable her to resume her voyage, interrupted when she rammed and sank the freighter, Rivas Cronites, in New York harbor. The freighter now rests on mud flats off Brooklyn, where she was pushed by the liner.

$254,409 IS 'L' MARCH PROFIT

During March of this year the revenue of the Boston Elevated Railway in excess of cost of service was $245,409, according to a report of the trustees. As compared to March of last year, this is a gain of nearly $100,000, the 1928 figure being $159,686, for revenue over cost of service.

For the nine months ending March 31, however, the cost exceeded the revenue by $437,346 as compared to $87,962 for the corresponding months of a year ago.

Passenger traffic declined 630,163 for March of this year, as compared to March of 1928. The 1929 March figure is 32,745,247.

Spanish World Fliers May Hop Off Sunday

Madrid, May 3 (INS)—Commander Franco, Spanish airman, who will attempt a round-the-world flight with three companions, said today he hoped to hop off on Sunday. He arrived from Cadiz to request the Spanish Government to allow him to use an Italian hydroplane instead of the Spanish hydroplane Numancia.

Duke Hops to Phone U. S.

Madrid, May 3 (INS)—When Archduke Ferdinand of Austria wants to telephone he doesn't allow anything to interfere.

Archduke Ferdinand was in Vienna and he wanted to get New York on aerial long distance. There was no established connection between Vienna and New York so Ferdinand hopped in a plane and told the air chauffeur to drive him to Barcelona.

A dispatch from Barcelona reported his arrival today. He had a six-minute telephone conversation with New York for which he paid 500 pesetas. Then he got into his plane once more, and said: "Home, James."

Lindy Meets Flier Who Would Trail

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., May 3 (INS)—Rene Le Fevre, French airman who plans to fly late this month from New York to Paris over the trail blazed by Lindbergh, is not lacking in enthusiastic visitors. Col. Lindbergh has conferred with the French pilot and he was expecting a visit today from Clarence Chamberlin, who flew from New York to Germany.

HUB DOCTOR IS 'GUILTY' IN R. I.

Providence, May 3—Found technically guilty of practicing medicine without a license in Rhode Island, Dr. Frederick Dugdale of Boston, a cancer specialist, was given a deferred sentence today by Judge Walsh in Superior Court.

It was a technical violation of the law. Dr. Dugdale was called by a physician to give a new treatment which he believes is a cure for cancer, and as he gave the treatment in some instances without the local doctor present, it constituted unlicensed practice.

The court proceedings were the result of a complaint made by the relatives of one patient who died. Judge Walsh commented that it is possible Dr. Dugdale, who has practiced in Boston more than 30 years, has the much-sought cure for the malady.

DEPOSED GUARD LOSES FIGHT

William E. Wallace, deposed Deer Island jail guard, today lost his fight for reinstatement when Judge William J. Day of South Boston Court dismissed Wallace's petition.

Judge Day has had the case under advisement for several days and has studied the 325-page transcript of testimony taken at previous hearings and the statements of counsel.

The guard was discharged following an alleged ride to Bass Point with two prisoners and another guard in the jail motor launch.

Reserve Decision in Actress' Bath Suit

White Plains, N. Y., May 3 (INS)—Supreme Court Justice Bleakley today reserved decision on the appeal of Juanita Hansen, former motion picture star, for an immediate trial of her $250,000 suit for damages against the Hotel Lincoln, of New York.

Miss Hansen alleges she was severely scalded when steam spouted from a cold water faucet in the hotel as she was taking a shower.

Stimson's Parrot in Good Health

San Francisco, Cal., May 3 (AP)—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's Chinese parrot, "The Old Soak," was reported in good health today at Singapore. A cablegram received at the Dollar steamship office here said the parrot was making the journey from Manila to New York in fine shape.

PEACOX CHUM TURNS ON HIM

White Plains, N. Y., May 3 (INS)—Eugene Bussey, Baltimore collegian, who received the kisses of Dorothy Peacox, 20, bride of Earle Peacox, who killed her and then burned her body, today renounced his lifelong friendship for the slayer.

Bussey came here to help save his erstwhile friend. Previously he admitted he had been unable to resist the kisses of "Dolly," but was now willing to tell the whole story of her flirtations with men to help save his friend. He and Earle had been inseparable chums since boyhood in Yonkers.

TURNS ON HIM.

But following a long interview with District Attorney Coyne, Bussey today declared he was utterly ashamed of his former stand. After Coyne revealed the fiendish details of the murder, Bussey said:

"I wouldn't care if Earle had shot himself."

Coyne declined to state whether he would call Bussey as a State witness to show premeditation and jealousy by the torch murderer.

TELLS OF "NECKING"

Bussey told Coyne of the "necking parties," with Dolly Peacox in Bronxville, of the gin and dance parties in her home in Mt. Vernon, of the love letters she sent him at college.

What appeared to turn young Bussey against his pal was the fact that Peacox was flirting with another woman while his wife's body lay under the apple blossom tree, their old trysting place, and the fact that Peacox went back and gorroted his victim to make sure.

Defer Trial of Fall Until Oct. 7 Next

Washington, May 3 (INS)—Trial of ex-Secretary of the Interior A. B. Fall on an indictment charging bribery, in connection with the $100,000 he received in "the little black satchel" from E. L. Doheny, was set today for October 7 next. The case was to have been called next Monday, but was postponed because of illness of Atlee Pomerene, special oil counsel for the government.

CASH REGISTER JUST VANISHES

The disappearance of a cash register from the store of Julius Levine of 120 Shirley ave., Revere, is puzzling Constable Raymond Duval.

The constable yesterday attached the store, and obtained a pledge from Levine not to move any goods.

Levine said he was in court all day and upon his return discovered the loss, which he said was a mystery as the store had been locked up in his absence.

Instructions for operating Fanst eel Balkite Radio Receiver, Models A-3, A-5 or A-7, for use only on 100-130 volt 50-60 cycle AC.

Installation

The Balkite Model A Radio Receiver is a seven tube, single dial Neutrodyne receiver of the antenna type, having four tuned stages, including three stages of neutralized radio frequency amplification, a tuned detector, one stage of straight and one stage of push-pull audio frequency amplification. It is equipped with a dynamic speaker field supply, and may be used in connection with an electrical phonograph pickup to reproduce phonographic music.

Yew Git

Five tubes, UY227. Two tubes, UX112A.
One rectifier tube, UX280.

If receiver is operated with other type loudspeaker or with dynamic speaker field wires disconnected, always operate with the resistance under binding posts.

Phonograph Pickup. A pickup jack located on top of receiver chassis near left hand edge is provided for plugging in the cord from an electrical phonograph pickup device when it is desired to use the audio amplifying system of the receiver, and the loudspeaker to reproduce phonograph music.

BAY STATE ADDS 3174 CITIZENS

Washington, May 3 (AP)—American citizenship was bestowed upon 19,813 aliens in March.

Statistics of the Department of Labor show the largest number—3753—came from Italy, while Poland was second with 2444. New York, with 6681, led the other states in the number naturalized, and Massachusetts was second with 3174.

race. "Some day the black race may rise up to dominance."

Some day the chimpanzees may dominate the natives of Africa. But it isn't likely.

Railroads are more prosperous than they were. The Baltimore and Ohio is interested in plans involving $189,000,000 for a bridge across the Hudson, connecting the rest of the United States with Manhattan Island.

That plan, originally advanced by the Pennsylvania Railroad, seems to have become a Baltimore and Ohio proposition. That railroad has been active and aggressive under the leadership of Mr. Willard.

Samuel Rea, formerly president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Gustav Lindenthal, famous engineer, still in charge of the enterprise, discussed the Fifty-seventh street bridge plan at W. R. Hearst's house some years ago.

Meanwhile the Pennsylvania is actually spending $100,000,000 electrifying its system from Wilmington to New York. General Atterbury predicts a New York population of more than 30,000,000 within a few years, and is getting ready for it.

Railroad men once made money wrecking roads. Now they make money by building. That is better.

It pays to get a good job and attend to it. And it pays to advertise. Twenty-two years ago, D. A. Crawford, very young, answered a "want ad" and got a job as stenographer with Mr. Carry, late president of the Pullman Company.

Yesterday, the Pullman Company directors, intelligently promoting one of their own men, chose Mr. Crawford to succeed Mr. Carry as president.

Don't stay in the wrong place. But don't be in a hurry to decide that you are right and the job is wrong.

In response to an appeal of Catholic charities in New York $1,081,450 were subscribed in a few days. The giving is largely a tribute to the esteem in which Cardinal Hayes is held by New York's citizens.

A gift of $25,000 was announced from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who wrote to Cardinal Hayes: "In trying to meet human needs, we are all of us, Catholics, Protestants and Jews alike, serving a common cause."

"Silence Is Golden" is truly spoken of Classified Want Ads—no noise, but they make a lot of stir—called Results.

TAD'S' FUNERAL IS SET FOR MONDAY

New York, May 3 (AP)—Private funeral services for Thomas Aloysius (Tad) Dorgan, noted newspaper cartoonist, will be conducted today.

Tad died in his sleep at his home in Great Neck, Long Island, of a heart ailment that had kept him confined to his home for seven weeks.

Although one of the most capable political cartoonists, especially on boxing and baseball, there was by no means a dull flower of the cartoonist's pen. As a matter of fact, he had few, if any, equals. Through a series of cartoons he originated a host of new expressions which quickly caught the popular fancy. Out of his fertile brain came "Twenty-three, Skidoo," "Yes, We Have No Bananas," "Hard-boiled Egg," "Dumb Dora," "Female Hoodoo," "Drug Store Cowboy," "Apple Sauce," "Take Faster," "The Cat's Meow," "Nickel Nursery," "Nobody Home," "The First Hundred Years Are the Hardest," "For Cryin' Out Loud," "You Tell 'Em," and literally scores of other slang expressions that have crept into every-day use. He it was who first termed an ancient a "Berny," and called feet "dogs."

Annual Novena in St. Theresa's Honor

Announcement has been made of the annual novena in honor of St. Theresa, "The Little Flower," which marks the anniversary of her canonization, will be held every year at the Carmelite Convent, Mt. Pleasant ave, Roxbury, beginning Thursday.

Today services will be held this afternoon at 5 o'clock, consisting of the prayers of the novena followed by benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. Visiting priests from various parishes will officiate on different afternoons.

Death Plane Pilot Is Held Blameless

Newark, N. J., May 3 (AP)—First word from the pilot of the plane which crashed near Newark on March 17, killing 11 persons, is in a report to the grand jury by the Essex County grand jury which has been making an investigation.

Poole was the only one to escape from the crash with his life.

Hammerstein, 2d, to Wed Former Star

New York, May 3—Oscar Hammerstein, 2d, son of the famous impresario and grandson of the opera producer, is to marry Dorothy Blanchard, who came to this country with the Chauve-Souris and left the stage to marry Jimmy Jacobson, a jeweler. She obtained a Reno divorce last month.

Services Held for Dr. Herbert C. Clapp

The funeral of Dr. Herbert C. Clapp, lung specialist, was held at his residence, 87 Winchester st, Brookline, with the Rev. Samuel M. Lindsay, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Brookline, officiating at the services.

"Message to Garcia" Emulated 11 Years Late

Providence, May 3—Private James O'Neil of Bartlitville, who was detailed as a runner after the victory of American forces at Chateau Thierry, completed the delivery of an order affecting the movement of troops nearly 11 years after he had been sent on the mission.

Lieut. J. G. Rivers of Springfield, Mass., commander of Co. B, of the 104th Infantry, is the man who should have received the order issued by his battalion commander. A series of unusual events while in France prevented its delivery until the mail man lent his assistance.

Capt. E. H. Phillips, commanding the First Battalion, 104th Infantry, on July 21, 1918, sent Private O'Neil with an order to Lieut. Rivers. O'Neil started, but was informed that Lieut. Rivers had been killed. He returned to his company and upon arrival found that Capt. Phillips had been killed during his absence. As a result, Private O'Neil put the order in his pocket as a souvenir.

When the 104th Infantry held its reunion in Northampton, Mass., last week, Rivers, who is now lieutenant colonel of the regiment, met O'Neil and the incident was related. O'Neil then promised to complete his mission and mailed the order to Rivers.

The order reads: "Commanding officer, First Battalion Point of Woods, July 21, 1918, hour 12:35 to commanding officer Co. B, move to left 300 yards."

7 ARE GUILTY IN MANILA REVOLT

Manila, May 3 (AP)—Seven men, who were arrested recently on charges of attempting to organize a "revolutionary army" to overthrow the government, were convicted of sedition today. Twelve others were acquitted.

Pedro Tolosa, the leader, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and fined 500 pesos ($250). The other six were fined 200 pesos each and sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

Government officials said the plotters had set prices for "commissions" in the projected revolutionary army and that the principal object was to swindle rather than to fight.

"Silence Is Golden" is truly spoken of Classified Want Ads—no noise, but they make a lot of stir—called Results.

REBEL CHIEF FLEES TO U. S.

San Antonio, Tex., May 3 (INS)—Somewhere in Arizona, Gen. Gonzalo Escobar, leader of the abortive Mexican revolution, today was under protection of American government officials.

He fled across the border near Agua Prieta, according to a message received here, evading federal troops who were closing in on three sides.

United States officials are keeping him under cover to discourage any demonstrations on either side of the international line.

HUDSON SCHOOL PICKS FLAG WINNERS

Katherine M. Fitzgerald and John W. Nugent of Hudson, Mass., were declared the girl and boy flag champions at the public exercises of St. Michael's Parochial School.

Miss Fitzgerald and Master Nugent were awarded the "Old Glory" medals in connection with the Flag Contest, now being conducted by the United States Flag Association.

The exercises were held in Knights of Columbus Hall in Hudson and attracted a large audience. The judges had difficulty in deciding the winners, the contest being exceptionally close.

Besides the awarding of the "Old Glory" medals to Miss Fitzgerald and Master Nugent, the following received "Testimonials of Honorable Mention" as runners-up in the local contest unit:

Ethel M. Coady, Isabelle J. Stark, Edward E. Gill and John J. Shaughnessy.

The contest was conducted by Sister Catherine Julie. The judges were Miss Elias M. Rabbette, teacher in the Harriman grammar school; Charles W. Malloy and Mrs. John M. Miller, for girls; the Rev. Andrew J. Corbett of St. Michael's Church, Dr. Irving Armstrong and William J. Busbee, Hudson postal clerk, for boys.

The program for the Richmond high school, Richmond, Me., at the recent public exercises was as follows:

Chairman—Principal Ivan M. Richardson, head of local contest unit
Judges for Boys—Dr Victor Carey, Mr Dorsh Hardesty, Tony Lagoy, Grundy
Judges for Girls—Mrs Ivan Richardson, Mrs Leola Grundy, Christine F. Coleman
Prayer for Flag—Lena Grundy.

Noah Flood! Now He Would Be a Watchman

Coincidence addicts became feverishly excited today when they learned that on the eligible list for watchman at the storage reservoir of the New Bedford water department is Noah Flood of Spring st., Fairhaven.

But Flood, who really should be first on the list because of his name, is eddying at the end.

The list was made public by the Civil Service Commission.

OLDEST TRAIN AGENT DEAN OF WIREMEN

By HELEN BLAKE

A familiar figure for 20 years to men and women using Back Bay station is Asa H. Porter, station agent. But few know of his distinction as the oldest telegrapher in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

This distinction came to him on the death of Thomas William Hoogs in Dedham on Wednesday in the late 70's these two men were the telegraph operators on the Old Colony Railroad.

Porter began his career at the age of 15 as a messenger boy on the Old Colony Railroad.

"I used to duck into the telegraph office, and catch on to it," he said, reminiscently. "That was in '71, and paper machines were being used. Later I learned telegraphy by sound. Before I left the Old Colony I went on the road for them, teaching telegraphy."

At 73 he is as eager and almost as active as when he began at 15.

"I shall stay here as long as I can," he declared today. "One is much better off active than inactive, and I feel as capable of doing my work as I always have."

Dynamite Kills Man

Bangor, May 3 (AP)—Everett Stone, 42, who was injured yesterday in a dynamite blast at Newbury Neck, Surry Bay, died today

COMMONER MAY TAKE PRINCESS AS BRIDE

Rome, May 3 (AP)—That all likelihood of a wedding between King Boris of Bulgaria and Princess Vlovanna, 21-year-old daughter of the King and Queen of Italy, seems to be gone, owing to religious differences, Roman society gossip is centered on trying to discover who is the most probable candidate for the royal young lady's hand.

It would seem then that Vlovanna's choice, if indeed a princess of the blood may be said to have one, might fall upon some scion of the Italian nobility, or even upon a "commoner."

Dies by Gas in Furnished Room

Springfield, May 3—Mrs. Ella Delaney, 70, was found dead today in her room at 43 Sargent st. by the landlady, Mrs. Minnie Donovan.

Mrs. Delaney was seated in a chair and illuminating gas was flowing from an open burner of a gas plate. She had been despondent because of infirmities.

Two Killed as Train Jumps Rails in N. Y.

Towanda, Pa., May 3 (AP)—Two engineers were killed and the crew of a second engine were slightly injured at Owego, N. Y., in the derailment of the two engines and five cars of a Lehigh Valley Railroad doubleheader milk and freight train today at a point where the tracks had been washed away by the damming up of a culvert.

2 Dead, 30 Hurt In Bombay

Bombay, May 3 (INS)—Two persons were killed and 30 wounded in a fresh outbreak of Hindu-Moslem rioting. Prompt action by the police prevented the battle from spreading.

FOUR YEARS FOR BIGAMIST WIFE 'GAVE' TO RIVAL

Riverhead, N. Y., May 3 (INS)—Herbert Leigh-Manuel, organist and music teacher, was sentenced to serve from two years and five months to four years and 10 months in Sing Sing for bigamy by County Judge George H. Furman today.

Leigh-Manuel pleaded guilty recently to an indictment charging that he committed bigamy last December when he married Miss Martha Van Wyen, a former pupil, at the Marble Collegiate church, in New York, with his own wife as a witness.

Judge Furman asserted that a girl in her teens—Miss Van Wyen a now 19 years old—knew nothing of love, that the relation of teacher and pupil was one of trust and confidence and that Leigh-Manuel could have protected the girl. He said he would give the defendant all if it were possible.

Fitchburg Man, Long Ill, Hangs Self

Fitchburg, May 3—William P. Lacer, 35, committed suicide by hanging at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Lecer, 3 Fairmount st. His body was found in a bathroom with one end of a cord about his neck and the other fastened to a hook.

Ill health for several years resulting in despondency on account of inability to get work was given as the cause.

Congressmen Still Get Freedom of Port

Washington, May 3 (INS)—The Treasury will continue to extend freedom of the port to congressmen traveling on official business despite the recommendation of a New York grand jury that the practice be discontinued as "unAmerican," it was stated today by Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary in charge of prohibition.

Atlantic Air Race by Graf Zeppelin and R-100 Likely

New York, May 3 (AP)—A race across the Atlantic by two huge air liners, the new British R-100 and the German Graf Zeppelin, looked as a possibility today.

Robert T. Pollock said the British ship would start for New York the latter part of June. The Graf Zeppelin may be en route to America at the same time.

CUP FOR 'MISS ROSLINDALE'

James W. Shea Post No. 190, American Legion, and its auxiliary, will conduct a whist party and dance in Washington Irving school hall, Poplar st., Roslindale, on May 15. The proceeds will be added to the building fund of the post and auxiliary.

One of the features will be the awarding of a silver loving cup to a young lady to be selected as "Miss Roslindale."

The committee in charge of the affair includes Past Commander Paul Kloss, aided by Miss Anna Berman, president of the auxiliary; Mrs. Margaret H. Willman, Mrs. Mary Deneby, Miss Mary Shea, Mrs. Pauline White, Mrs. Sarah Kloss, Mrs. Emma Callaghan, Mrs. Amanda Ehrenholm, Miss Hilma Ehrenholm, Mrs. Helen Mullin, Mrs. Catherine O'Brien, Mrs. Anna Curley, Mrs. Anna M. Magaldi.

Mrs. Mary Brown, Mrs. Alice Wolfe, Mrs. Mary O'Neill, Commander John B. Magaldi, William Mullin, Hugh Callaghan, Herbert Barton, Robert Burns, Joseph Berman, Alfred Keating, John O'Brien, William Donely, Samuel Bonino, Daniel Thornton, Frank Gangemi, Bernard Cassidy, Lawrence Brack and Joseph Sloane.

College of Liberal Arts to Hold Picnic

Plans for the annual picnic of students of Boston University's College of Liberal Arts, at Nickerson field next Wednesday, have been completed with announcement by the chairman of five committees.

Kenneth Chadwell of Lynn, chairman of men's sports, and Katherine Connolly, Lynn, women sports; William Davis of Arlington, transportation; Arnold Nichols of Newtonville, dancing, and John Rohrbough of Cambridge, general chairman, are the students elected to complete plans.

Mt. Tom Summit House Is Burned

Holyoke, May 3 (AP)—A blackened chimney was all that remained today of the Mt. Tom Summit house. A fire which swept the big four-story hotel made quick work of the noted structure. The blaze started in the observatory on the fourth floor from an undetermined cause. Four telescopes valued at $4000 were saved. Loss was placed at $50,000. Dr. H. L. Hastings, treasurer of the Mt. Tom Railroad Association, which owned the house, said a temporary structure would be started today to care for this season's guests.

Middleboro Strives to Regain Business

Middleboro, May 3—This town, now that the smallpox situation of 125 cases is well in hand, is carrying on a fight to gain back its business ever since the name "smallpox" became associated with Middleboro people have given the town a wide berth, with the result that business has greatly suffered. Local business will carry on a campaign of advertising stating the real situation regarding health conditions. Public subscriptions may be sought.

Gomez Re-elected

Caracas, Venezuela, May 3 (AP)—Gen. Juan Vincente Gomez was re-elected President of Venezuela today by unanimous vote of Congress. His term will expire in 1935.

HEALER DENIES ANY PART IN STOCK PLOT

New York, May 3 (AP)—A denial that he had any part in an alleged conspiracy to sell Fremont Grant, Inc., stock was entered in Supreme Court by the Rev. Dr. Fenwicke B. Holmes, pastor of the First Church of Divine Science. Supreme Court Justice May reserved decision.

Deputy Atty.-Gen. William Millholland had applied for an injunction restraining Dr. Holmes and his brother, William; William A. Carr, a broker, and Freemont Grant, Inc., and holding company for the mines, from selling further stock in the company.

The complaint in the attorney-general's suit alleged that Fenwicke Holmes and William Holmes were teachers and instructors, "teaching metaphysical healing for the mind as well as material prosperity for their followers."

In carrying out their scheme, Millholland said, they held meetings in New York, Buffalo, Boston, Atlantic City, San Francisco, Cincinnati and elsewhere.

Among the alleged victims of Dr. Fenwicke in Greater Boston were Mrs. Elizabeth A. Taylor of 677 Dudley st., Roxbury, and her daughter, Miss Maude I. Taylor, who invested $2000.

Dorchester K. C. to Have Communion

Dorchester Council, K. of C., will hold its annual communion breakfast in the Columbus Club, Pearl and Pleasant sts., Dorchester, Sunday morning, following the 7.30 a. m. mass in St. Ambrose Church. Speakers will include the Rev. William S. Twohig of St. Mark's Church, Dorchester; Peter J. Donoghue, State Secretary Joseph M. Kirby and District Deputy Edward A. Hurley.

George W. Kilgore is chairman of the committee. Assisting are John J. Hickey, Jr., William Rattigan, John Finnegan, John H. Gates and Grand Knight Thomas J. Kelley.

Fall River Mills Ask for Tax Abatement

Fall River, May 3—The city of Fall River has been notified that the Shove Mills will seek abatement of 1927 taxes by appeal to the superior court. The corporation sets forth in its petition for jury trial that it was taxed $35,302.34 in 1927, which is held as unjust.

Two other mills, the Laurel Lake and the Lincoln, will also seek abatements in the courts.

THE NEW SILENT KELVINATOR

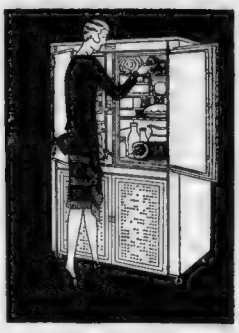
automatically keeps your foods as safe at home as they were kept in the market



THE modern merchant from whom you buy your foods realizes the importance of keeping them fresh and wholesome until they are sold. For this purpose he provides constant low temperatures by electric refrigeration . . . probably Kelvinator refrigeration.

Doesn't it seem just as reasonable that you should give them the same good care . . . holding all their wholesome goodness until they are eaten?

The New Silent Kelvinator provides that steady, constant low temperature year in and year out. It is entirely automatic, always operating silently without attention or regulation on your part.

Come in and see it today. It is most reasonable in cost and may be installed immediately on Kelvinator's attractive ReDisCo monthly budget plan.

KING IS GOING BACK TO PALACE

London, May 3 (INS)—It was stated in court circles today that King George probably will leave Craigwell House, Bognor, his convalescent home on the Sussex coast, for Windsor Castle about the end of this month.

Thus, after four months of illness so serious that more than once hope was virtually abandoned England's 63-year-old monarch will in all probability again reign shortly in his full powers.

In court circles it is believed the King will spend future winters upon the Continent, owing to the rigors of the weather here.

'Graduation Day' at State Federation

The State Federation held its "graduation day" at the Hotel Vendome and 10 women, retiring officers, were graduated. Each was presented with symbolic flowers of tribute.

President Mrs. Azel A. Packard was the day's guest.

Mrs. Frederick M. Prescott, chairman of meetings presided. Before introducing each "sweet girl graduate" she took from prose and poetry an apt quotation befitting the character of the retiring officers.

It was in the form of a May day party; a day when the State Federation officers and committee members get together in a play-day and windup of the year's work preparatory to the annual meeting at Swampscott.

"It is a little early for graduating classes," Mrs. Prescott said. "But in the Federation graduation exercises always come at this time" Each table was decorated with a multi-colored May pole.

Mrs. David D. Nickerson, who retires after three years of service as chairman of the State department of education was the first called upon. She commended her "dandy committee," spoke of "cherished memories" and "life-long friendships" and likened her service to a "friendship of three years packed into one day in a beautiful garden."

Mrs. Frederick M. Prescott

Mrs. Ralph H. Reed, State chairman, American Home, spoke briefly and said that at last the women had "come out of the kitchen idea."

A feature of the luncheon was the "stunt" presented by the five directors who last year were graduated out of office. They are Mrs. Carl L. Watson, Mrs. Joseph Congden, Mrs. Edward A. Rice, Mrs. E. B. Keach and Mrs. J. H. Libby. They read a dialogue poem which pleased the members and caused considerable laughter. It was a sparkling piece.

Mrs. Herman A. Harding, retiring first district director, said that she found the clubwomen enjoyed community service best. Mrs. Henry E Robert of the fifth district, retiring, paid tribute to the Federation, as did the other retiring directors, Mrs. Bert S. Currier, seventh district; Mrs. Walter A. Hall, ninth district, and Mrs. Abigail M. E Woodward, thirteenth district.

Mrs. Allen V. Mosher retires as assistant clerk; Mrs. Boyd F Bowles as corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Edwin L. Pride as clerk.

Bessie D. Fabens, Mrs. Horatio R. Harper and hosts of others.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

The grand council of the Camp Fire Girls will be held at Symphony Hall. Fifteen hundred girls participate. A long list of patronesses sponsor the affair which celebrates the 17th anniversary of the incorporation of the national organization. The girls will wear the ceremonial gowns. Mrs. Frank G. Allen, the governor's wife, is to be chairman of the reception committee of which the following are members: Mrs. J. Verity Smith, Miss Margaret Thomasna, Miss Zillah E. Wells and Miss Doris F. V. Foster. Miss Lotte A. Clark is president of the Camp Fire Girls

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN'S CLUB

Election of officers of the Democratic Women's Club of Massachusetts will take place at the Elks Hotel, the organization's headquarters. Miss Elizabeth Needham is president.

SCHOLASTICANA

The annual bridge and whist of the Scholasticana will take place at the Copley-Plaza at 2 p. m. Mrs. Walter J. Whelan, president, is in charge. She will be assisted by Mrs. Frederick Mahoney of Brighton. Mrs. William Tappan of Revere, and Mrs. Joseph Dolan of Arlington. The party proceeds will be devoted to St. Anselm's College, Manchester, N. H., the first Benedictine Abbey in New England. The Scholasticana is the first women's organization assisting the institution. It was formed in Boston three years ago.

SATURDAY MEETINGS

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB

Harry E. Burrough, founder of the boys' institution which bears his name will discuss "The New Way of Dealing With Adolescent Youth" at the 1 p. m. meeting of the Twentieth Century Club at the clubhouse, No. 8 Joy st. His own boyhood is one of interest and example. He came to this country at the age of 12, an orphan and friendless. Hence his vital concern about the newsboys of the city and his undertaking. Paul Richard of New York will also address the members on "The Miracle of America." He is a celebrated French writer and an Orientalist of note.

NEW HAMPSHIRE DAUGHTERS

The 35th birthday party of the New Hampshire Daughters will be held at the Hotel Vendome. Festivities will start at 11:30 a. m. A reception will be followed by a luncheon at noon and an annual meeting at 2 p. m. Songs of 25 years ago sung by club members and led by Mrs. Sarah Simpson will feature the occasion. Reports will be given and an election of officers for the ensuing year held.

SALEM T. B. ASSOCIATION

Mrs. James E. Simpson is chairman of the Carnation Day Committee for the Salem Association for the Prevention of T. B. The increasing current expenses and necessary repairs together with the need for a new dormitory for the Health Camp makes it imperative that a large sum of money be raised this year. For these reasons the public will be asked to contribute to the worthy cause. The workers include Mrs. Albert Goodhue, Miss E. W. Cogzin, Mrs. Roger Hall, Mrs. John Daland, Mrs Henry Johnson, Miss Florence Silsbury, Miss Mary Franks, Mrs. Henry P. Benson, Miss Ellen B. Laight, Miss

CURLEY FAVORS CUT IN EARNED INCOME TAX

On of the most vigorou'y outspoken demands so far made for a revision of the present Federal income tax regulations was uttered today by James M. Curley, former mayor of Boston, in a letter to the Boston Evening American commending the stand of this paper in this great public question. Together with Hearst newspapers throughout the United States, the Boston Evening American is waging a battle for a sharp revision in the Federal tax as it applies to earned income.

"The Boston Evening American in advocating a revision downward upon all taxes on earned income is rendering a splendid service to the most necessary element for the continued existence of the American Republic, the so-called middle class," writes ex-Mayor Curley.

FEW HAVE BIG INCOMES

"The professional man devotes nearly the first 25 years of his life to study in preparation for a professional career and due to the ferocity of the struggle for existence, or success, in a majority of cases, receives an annual income of less than $10,000 per annum. The number receiving in excess of $10,000 is limited and the number between $5000 and $10,000 is far greater than above $10,000 per annum

"What is true of the higher professions is equally true of artisans and clerical help of every character, and yet this element is the dependable, conservative, law abiding and law upholding force upon which the nation must rely both in peace and strife.

"The federal revenue derived from this source is not considerable to the government, but to the individual, whose standing in the country is invariably based upon the character of his home and person, it is most exacting and represents a burden that he should not be required to bear.

REDUCTION EQUITABLE

"The period during which professional men, artisans, artists and clerical workers enjoy an income sufficiently large to be subject to taxation is no greater than the length of time necessary for study and preparation for their life work, so that a reduction of 50 per cent would appear equitable.

"The exemptions granted to those best able to pay under the head of market losses if properly checked, would provide more than sufficient revenue to compensate for revision downward as proposed."

Prince Henry Bestows Garter on Japan Ruler

Tokio, May 3 (AP)—Prince Henry, third son of King George of Great Britain, knelt at the feet of Emperor Hirohito of Japan today and clasped to his left leg a royal purple garter, insignia of England's highest order of knighthood.

The ceremony completed, Emperor Hirohito journeyed across the city to Kasumigaseki palace, the prince's temporary home, personally to bestow on him the Grand Order of the Chrysanthemum, Japan's highest decoration.

The two ceremonies were the climax of a voyage half way around the world for the young prince, or, as he is more widely known, the Duke of Gloucester.

YOUNGER SET TRIES TRAVELING TO REST UP

Liners, Trains and Motors Carrying Junior Leaguers Out of Town

WITH SO MANY TRIPPING feet from Junior League ranks starting up ocean liner gangplanks, aboard trains for spring resorts, and into family motors for summer homes, those remaining claim the lion's share of popularity and admiration for their good deeds when charity would be served. In these days of "resting up trips," after the strenuous winter which, many debutantes, with June calendars dotted with wedding invitations, are catching up with their beauty sleep for the bride's month events. Thus, those still "on duty" through May are greatly appreciated for their generosity.

MISS ELIZABETH SCAIFE will head a charming group which is to usher for the private showing of the famous motion picture, "Joan of Arc," presented by the Artkino Guild at the Copley-Plaza next Friday. Her able assistants will be Miss Eleanor Perry, Miss Edith Eustis, Miss Ann Robbins, Miss Marguerite Swann, Miss Rosamond Musgrave, Miss Jane Garfield, Miss Mary Cowles, Miss Mary Eustis, Miss Penelope Perry, Miss Rue French, Miss Anna Wolcott, Miss Gertrude Marean and Miss Virginia Cowles. And a winter's service in ushering for this benefit and that assures the guests that seating will be well done by this corps.

MISS EVA LE GALLIENNE and Lothrop Stoddard are to tell of the aims and requirements of the Guild, which is planning the erection of a motion picture theater in Boston, where only the finest pictures will be shown. Thus will the motion picture be elevated as is the spoken drama via the Theater Guild. Mrs. Cornelia Stratton Parker presides.

MISS VIOLET TANGEMAN BEcomes the wife of Arthur M. Cottrell, Jr., of Westerly, R. I., in a quiet ceremony at the home of her aunt, Mrs. W. B. Jourdan at 410 Park ave., New York, next Wednesday with only the immediate families present. Her Boston aunt, Mrs. Walter M. Pratt, will go over for the event.

BRIDES' SHOPS IN NEW York lured Miss Elinor de W Jackson and her mother, Mrs. James Jackson of Mt. Vernon st. away for a week of shopping and visiting yesterday. A June wedding is to be Miss Elinor's at the Jackson summer home in Beverly Farms where she becomes Mrs. Augustus Flagg Doty.

AN ESPECIALLY HAPPY event of this month is to be the dance given by the Roger Wolcotts on the 24th at their Milton home, when the younger set welcomes Mrs. Wolcott's daughter, Miss Barbara Welch, home from her European trip. This is to be a comfortably small, intimate affair. Miss Welch has been touring Europe with her grandmother and aunt, Mrs. Holmes Hinckley and Miss Eleanor Hinckley of Cambridge. She is to reach home on the 20th.

Miss Elizabeth Scaife heads the Junior League girls ushering for the Artkino Guild at the Copley-Plaza, May 10.

STORK FEATHERS FLYING here and there announce the visit of the old bird to Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Weld, leaving a bud for the 1947 social season. Miss Patricia Weld is the name which will some day be added to the Vincent Club and Junior League rolls. The young favorite's paternal grandmother is Mrs. C. Minot Weld of Marlborough st. and her maternal grandmother is Mrs Theodore Burgess of Dedham.

SOCIAL LIGHTS WHO DIRECT the destinies of five different charities are assembled today at the invitation of Mrs. Moses Williams to plan more things over their tea cups at the Brittany Coffee Shop. Mrs. J. Mott Hallowell is presiding at this gathering of the Thrift Shop executive committee, and the combined boards of the Boston Dispensary, the Children's Hospital, Ellis Memorial and the Free Hospital for Women. Mrs Stephen Sleeper is to report the year's work.

NAMES THAT STAND FOR dollars for the poor and comfort for the ill and unfortunate include those of Mrs. F. L. W. Richardson, Mrs. C. F. Weed, Mrs. Richard Saltonstall, Jr., Miss Alice Sargent, Mrs. Malcolm Lang, Mrs. George R. Fearing, 3d, Mrs. A. W. Bell, Mrs. Guy Waring, Mrs. Edward Warren, Mrs Samuel Warren, Mrs. S. H. Wolcott, Mrs. F. C. Converse and Mrs. Robert C. Morse. All of these do active work in various charities.

THE HOMERIC BROUGHT the John Wells Farleys of Needham home on its most recent crossing. They came down the gangplank in proceed immediately to the Hotel Ambassador, where they were joined by the Eliot Farwells from Mt. Kisco, N. Y. Boston and the North Shore are to welcome these globe trotters within the next few days. Another traveler who is to be eagerly received by a different circle of the important ones is Miss Hope Richardson, whose ship does not reach home shores until June 20. Miss Hope, it is rumored, will inaugurate the next deb season when she makes her formal bow to society shortly after arriving home at the Readville estate of the John Richardsons, Jr.

THE HORSE LOVING CONtingent is never so happy as when making out the entry forms for their favorites in the Chestnut Hill Horse Show, the time for which is slipping fast away. May 16 is the last day for this important ceremony preceding the 26th annual open air horse show on the Chestnut Hill grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club, May 30. "Decoration Day" is thus to be decorated with the upper crusty ones seeking honors for patrician stables.

HOUSE AWAITING TARIFF BILL

Washington, May 3 (AP)—More committee activity than usual tended to diversify the interest of members of Congress today as the Senate continued its struggle with the farm bill.

The House, awaiting the tariff revision bill, again had no legislative program. The Senate still had the troublesome debenture provision of the farm bill to dispose of, and the hope of Chairman McNary of the agriculture committee for a vote late today was fading.

The Senate agriculture committee, meanwhile, was called to conduct a hearing on flood conditions in the South, and the military affairs committee to consider presidential nominations.

Committee Still in Deadlock on Mellon

Washington, May 3 (AP)—The Senate judiciary committee failed again today to reach any decision on its study of the right of Secretary Mellon to hold office and another meeting was called for to-

Fire Veteran Dies

James H. Wilson, 70, retired dry goods man and vice-president of Charlestown Veteran Firemen's Association, and well-known resident of Bunker Hill district, is dead, following a brief illness.

MISS OSGOOD, 46, DIES

Hopedale, May 3 (AP)—Miss Fannie C. Osgood, 46, a former state women's golf champion and a member of one of the oldest families in Hopedale, died of heart disease today. She was a native of Boston.

She was active in state politics and was a member of the Hopedale Republican town committee. She was a member of the Unitarian church.

A sister, Mrs. Hannah C. Townsend of New Haven, and two brothers, Dana of Hopedale and George D. of Boston, survive her.

LYNN CHIEF IS 83 YEARS OLD

Rounding out his 44th year in the police department, Chief Thomas Burkes of Lynn today observed his 83rd birthday by reporting for duty at his usual hour of 7 a. m.

The chief, head of his department for 33 years, is in excellent health and says he can read the Boston American without eyeglasses. His ambition is to live long enough to eat apples off some trees he planted last year in his orchard.

Every Memorial Day the chief leads the local parade in his double capacity of chief and Spanish War veteran.

Hoover Has Lost Two Pounds on New Job

Washington, May 3 (INS)—President Hoover has lost two pounds since he entered the White House two months ago.

The decrease is attributed to the hard physical exercise the President takes each morning with his "medicine ball cabinet" on the grounds of the White House.

"Mr. Hoover is in splendid physical shape," said Dr. Joel T. Boone, White House physician. "His general condition is better than when he was inaugurated.

A volleyball court has been marked out on the grounds to supplement the medicine ball exercise.

COCK PIT
SIX-DAY STORY

by JAMES GOULD COZZENS

Thrilling 6-Day Novel by Noted Author

What Has Gone Before

Ruth Micks comes back from school to her home in Cuba, where her father, Lancy, is employed by big sugar interests. She has a great admirer in Ramon Fondevilla, expelled from Princeton. Maurice Norts becomes a frequent visitor at the Micks household, neglecting Mrs. Fletcher, wife of the administrator of the sugar properties, to whom he had been attentive in the past. Don Miguel Bautizo is the big power in the cane industry. Micks fears him. Edith Fletcher is a great admirer of Ruth, and incurs the displeasure of her mother. Mrs. Fletcher is annoyed at Maurice's liking for Ruth.

Mrs. Bautizo warns Ruth not to encourage Maurice. A great fire threatens the cane fields. Ruth goes to the scene with Ramon, against her father's orders. Ramon kisses her and tells her he loves her. She is not very responsive. She shows her daring and faces her father after the fire is under control. Two men are carrying a man. Lancy tells her to go home, as she can't help. A sack is laid over the man's head.

Lancy, realizing he has shot Martinez, is troubled, wondering if he was really trying to fire the cane. Ruth rebels against Ramon, consoling herself that she's never told him she loves him. Norts is consumed with a silent admiration of Ruth. He stops at the Fletcher's on Christmas Eve to give Mary a present, but continues on to Ruth's.

Ramon's love affair with Ruth causes much comment. Her father has a fight with Arnold over the man killed in the cane, and the Christmas party breaks up with a row.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 5

It had cleared Lancy Micks' head to hit Mr. Arnold.

"Daddy!" called a voice at home.

"Listen, daddy," begged Ruth, "if you hadn't stopped the fire that night and all Santa Catalina this side of the river had gone up, what would have happened? I mean, about Central Baria, for instance."

"Guess they'd go down; it's what usually happens."

"But they're all right now."

"They're all right if that bridge is, and I'm pretty dead sure it isn't. They'll certainly be out of luck if they can't get most of the Santa Catalina cane."

"Daddy, please go and see Hilario. I think you ought to find out why Martinez wanted to fire that cane."

"I know why, if he did. Pepe Ruiz put him up to it."

"What do you mean, 'if he did'?"

Lancy Micks put his finger tips together. "Well," he said finally, "maybe Arnold's right, you know."

Ruth sat straight up.

"Get this right," suggested Lancy Micks. He stared at her a moment. "I didn't know it was Martinez. I thought I knew what he was doing. I shot him first and went to see afterward."

Elmer Kirk noticed Mr. Grove leaving the rooms of the Casa Vivienda, noisy now with dance music, and hot. Elmer seized the opportunity to slip out, too.

He saw Ruth and Edith Fletcher. Probably Ruth was taking Edith home. "Hello," he said awkwardly.

"Hello, Mr. Kirk," said Edith. "We're going driving with Saez. Come along."

He heard Ruth ask where they were going. Saez, the driver, thought they could go to Juarez and turn around and come back, because the road was good now.

It struck Elmer as amusing that Juarez was where Grove was going.

"Saez," he heard Ruth say, "you can leave us at the Florida and go and get yourself a drink. Fifteen minutes will be all right."

Elmer Kirk saw Ruth give Saez some money.

"Where is every one, senor?" asked Ruth of the woman at the Florida bar.

"Fiesta," the woman shrugged.

"H'm," whistled Ruth.

Disturbed, she paid the woman, and lit a cigarette. "Where is this fiesta?" she asked.

"All over," grunted the old woman. "Listen. They're coming here."

There were footsteps.

Through the door appeared the unsteady figures of Mr. Grove and several other San Mario men. Mr. Grove roared with laughter.

Ruth stood still. "Get away from here, Grove!" she said, and for the instant her voice seemed to sober him. "Get your drunken friends away from here or I'll have you run out of San Mario tomorrow. . . ."

Whether he would have or not could never be determined, for a sudden surge from with-

8-YEAR LAWBREAKER NABBED IN HOUR

R. I. BRINGS AUTOIST TO GRIEF

Providence, May 3—For eight years Gilbert B. Curran of Rockland, Mass., has been driving an automobile in the Bay State without a license—but less than an hour after entering Rhode Island he was arrested.

Curran, accompanied by his wife, three children, two dogs and a neighbor who had his family in another car, was stopped in East Greenwich because his machine had only one headlight.

When it was discovered he had no license and had been driving without one, he was arrested and fined $1 and costs of $260.

Then he applied for a license, that he might continue on his way to New Jersey, where he intends making his home, but the State board of public roads refused his application.

Curran was stuck and unable to move his car, until finally the East Greenwich police, not wishing to have the car and family on their hands, offered to let Curran's friend him out of town.

The Curious Quizzer

Medford Folk Answer His Daily Question and Pose for Picture

THE QUESTION

Do you believe that the proposed bridge from South Boston to Nantasket should be State controlled and free from toll or should it be erected by a private corporation and charge for crossing imposed upon motorists?

JOHN A. BUFFUM, 21 Vine st.—I have never favored a toll bridge. If the proposed bridge to Nantasket is a necessity let it be paid for out of taxation or out of income from automobiles received by the State. State officials would have no control over the assessments on cars that are run over a privately controlled bridge. I am not entirely sure that such a bridge is necessary and I am certain that it would detract business from many of the South Shore cities and towns.

GEORGE ALBANESE, 413 Riverside ave. — I feel that if a bridge is to be built from South Boston to Nantasket that it should be erected by the State and placed in charge of State officials. If the bridge was to be built by private companies, it would simply be taxing motorists and no fair disposition of charges could be made. A commuter from Nantasket to Boston in his automobile would be assessed more than the tourists who go to Nantasket once or twice a year. The motorists of Nantasket would have to pay for the bridge.

• • •

GERMAINE CALCUSSENS, 58 Lawrence st.—A bridge to be paid out of State taxes and no toll charge is what should be built from South Boston to Nantasket. There is enough income from automobiles to build such a bridge. A privately controlled bridge is an assessment on the motorist and there are already enough of them. There is no question in my mind that the profits of a toll bridge would be enormous and the stock holder would be the profit winner. I say a State controlled bridge.

HOLDUP BY 2 GUNMEN A MYTH

Harold Gough of Milton is 19, but he's not convincing all the time. Today being a new day he confessed his holdup story of yesterday was damp around the edges and he told it because he wished to retain his week's pay of $19.

Yesterday young Gough, whose home is in Dwyer rd., reported that at an early hour two men in a battered flivver drove up in Warren ave., Milton, held him up with guns and took his money.

Police Chief Travers was suspicious and after several questions, today obtained a signed confession that Gough had concocted the story. Later the boy confessed to his parents.

Smith While Governor Lived Most Simply

upon him, was the same as you or I.

Life at the mansion during Governor Smith's occupancy was no different than would be found in the average American home. There was no pretense or display, just a good wholesome family life. I have often thought that if every family in the country held the same even tenor as was Governor Smith's, there would be fewer domestic problems.

Governor Smith was essentially a family man, despite the fact that he always had been more or less in the public eye. His fondness for his mother, his wife, his children and his pets could be held up as an example for any man. He was, in fact, as good a son, husband and father as he was a governor.

When he first came to the mansion, back in '19, his entire family was with him—Mrs. Smith, Alfred, Jr., Emily, Arthur, Catherine and Walter. The house always was filled with young children, for the youngsters always had friends staying with them. And how the Governor enjoyed them.

One of his greatest pleasures, I believe, was when the family was grouped about the dinner table, with himself at the head. The children would poke fun at each other, "razzing," as it is called, while the Governor would sit back and chuckle, now and then adding a word to keep the verbal tilts in motion.

None of the children was pampered or spoiled. The Governor wanted them to be just plain American citizens. For that reason the children were not sent away to private schools, but were educated at the parochial schools, the Cathedral Academy and the Sacred Heart convent. Just as he was an ordinary man, his sons and daughters were ordinary children.

After Alfred, Jr., Arthur, Emily and Catherine were married, the Governor continued the custom of having the entire family with him on every possible occasion. His grandchildren were his particular delight. Arthur's children were with him all last summer and he never missed an opportunity of paying his granddaughter, Mary Adams Warner, a daily visit.

It will be remembered that when the former Governor made his first visit to Albany after leaving the mansion, he declared that the purpose of the trip here primarily was to see his granddaughter.

Christmas Jolly

Governor Told Grandchildren All About Santa

Christmas time at the mansion always was a jolly occasion. All the children, with their children, were there and the Governor would spend hours telling his grandchildren all about Santa Claus. After learning from them just what they wanted for Christmas, he would walk to the fireplace and shout up the chimney. Then imitating a ventriloquist would carry on a mock conversation with Santa Claus, while the children shouted with glee.

A huge tree always was set up in one of the rooms at the mansion, and no one took more delight than the Governor in decorating it on Christmas eve. Christmas morning always saw the mansion even more full of life than usual, with sons and daughters and grandchildren crowding about the tree, opening presents and voicing their thanks and Christmas greetings.

Play on Floor

'Al' Was Called Oompah By His Grandchildren

The Governor usually spent most of the day on the floor playing with his grandchildren and their toys. Every gift received had to be shown to grandpa, or "oompah," as Arthur Smith, Jr., called him, and grandpa never was remiss in expressing interest in the doll, bicycle or whatever the toy might be.

With the entire family about the table, Christmas dinner in the mansion was a meal long to be remembered. Then always after dinner came the newspaper photographers and movie cameramen to get their pictures of the Governor with his flock.

The Governor's devotion to his mother was another phase of his life that made a deep impression on me. While she was alive, he never failed to call her at her home in Brooklyn each day. Whenever he was in New York, his first stop always was at his mother's home.

Mrs. Smith, the Governor's wife, was a jolly, broad-minded woman, particularly fit for such a husband as he was. They frequently played rummy together, with much feigned grousing and grumbling from the Governor when he lost. Sometimes they played for small stakes, and when the Governor was beaten he invariably accused his wife, in a joking way, of cheating.

Great Eater

But "Al" Never Knew What Indigestion Was

Both the Governor and Mrs. Smith took a deep interest in the children and whatever concerned them. They watched over their school work most carefully in the earlier days at the mansion and report cards had to be duly presented and to be duly presentable each month or else someone was in for a reprimand.

Although not a big eater, the Governor was fond of plain, wholesome food, well cooked. He ate almost everything and never was known to suffer from indigestion.

The old American standby, ham and eggs, was a favorite at the mansion, particularly on Sunday mornings, after church. Lamb stew, steak and onions and Champlain ice fish also appeared regularly on the menu at the mansion, while the Governor's pet dessert was plain rice pudding with raisins.

During the week breakfast at the mansion was served between 9 and 9:30 a. m., while dinner was at 7 p. m. The Governor, at the Capitol all day, either went without lunch, or ate only a sandwich with a glass of milk, while Mrs. Smith never had a noonday meal. On Sundays breakfast was served after return from church and dinner around 6 p. m.

The Governor's taste in clothing was meticulously correct. He always purchased plain clothes, although good ones, without any display of extravagance. Blue was his favorite color for suits.

His brown derby is, of course, traditional. On Sundays, however, it invariably was replaced by a black derby while he frequently wore a gray or brown felt hat on weekdays.

This interesting story of the simple life led by Ex-Governor "Al" Smith during his four terms in the executive mansion at Albany will be concluded tomorrow with further details of the doings of his charming family.

Mrs. Smith Liked Simple Dress Models

MRS. SMITH liked plain clothes and always looked neat and not over dressed. She also had a considerable quantity of jewelry, but never wore much of it.

Mrs. Smith always showed very good taste in the colors she chose for each hour of the day. Her street clothes were usually taupe or beige, unless the day's program called for a suit of navy blue. She usually wore simple dresses of a biscuit color at tea time. In the evening, she favored midnight blue and gray, and always a corsage of orchids for any affair.

Mrs. Smith was an excellent housekeeper and always managed to know what was going on in the house. She was very fond of having people with her and often occupied the governor's box at the Capitol Theater, with a group of young people.

WITH SMITH FAMILY AT HOME

Mary Warner Arthur Smith, Jr. Walter Smith

Ex-Governor and Mrs. Smith are shown on the lawn with the grandchildren, who are the delight of their lives and with whom they love to romp.

CRISP GOLDEN BROWN MUFFINS

with melt-in-your-mouth deliciousness because they're rich with the double-cream wholesomeness of Borden's Evaporated Milk — made by the oldest and largest milk company in America.

Bacon Muffins: 1 cup flour, ¾ cup corn meal, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 egg, beaten light, ½ cup Borden's Evaporated Milk, ½ cup water, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons crisp, cooked bacon, chopped, 2 tablespoons bacon drippings. Mix and sift dry ingredients, add bacon, egg and milk, diluted with water. Stir until well mixed. Add bacon drippings. Beat well. Pour into hot, well-buttered muffin pans. Bake about twenty-five minutes in a hot oven (about 425° F.)

HEIRESS WILL MARRY LOVE CULT MAN

New York, May 3—Out of the Omnipotent Oom's love colony at Nyack there materialized romance today.

Diana Hunt Wertheim, Manhattan heiress to the General Cigar fortune and Smith College graduate, will marry Percival Wilcox Whitlesey, who for six years under the flossy title, "Loving Garu," has been secretary to none other than Oom, or Pierre Bernard, the big shot himself.

Diana's mama, who once declared her daughter needed $25,000 to live in the style to which she had been accustomed and to be a lady, made announcement of the engagement from her home in West 58th st., but when reporters called at the house for more details it came out that Mrs. Jacob Wertheim was in ignorance of the love cult background of the daughter's romance.

Other reporters who visited Nyack for details on that end were told by straight-lipped neighbors that it had been their impression that the fair Diana and the just as fair Percival had been married for some time.

Diana was graduated from Smith College at Northampton, Mass., in 1924 and afterward studied under Prof. George Pierce Baker in his dramatic workshop at Yale, sharing enthusiasms for the theater with her brother, Maurice Wertheim, director in the Theatre Guild.

MOVED TO COLONY

Then she moved into the love colony at Nyack and plunged enthusiastically into its activities under guidance of Percival and the Omnipotent Oom himself.

Percival has been married previously but his wife divorced him last November. He is the son of Mrs. H. C. Whittlesey of Castellamare, Cal., and is a graduate of Williams College. He also studied philosophy at Harvard and in Germany.

The wedding is scheduled for June.

To Meet King

Miss Virginia Willys, New York deb, sailed on the Mauretania for England, where she will be presented at the Court of St. James on May 9.

It's Villa Stimson

Managua, Nicaragua, May 3 (AP)—The name of a village where the peace pact ending the revolution was signed under a tree is to be changed from Tipitapa to Villa Stimson, in honor of the Secretary of State of the United States.

NEW AIRPLANE LINE BOOMS AFRICA

Cape Town, South Africa, May 3 (AP)—Rapid development of South Africa is expected here through the new weekly air service between London and this city, negotiations for which were recently completed between the British and Union of South Africa governments.

The New Imperial Air Line will bring London within 12 days of Cape Town and this is expected to react advantageously upon trade and commerce, and to encourage increased colonization and tourist travel.

Working expenses of the new air line will be shared between Britain and the governments of South Africa, the Sudan, Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda for a five-year period, and the Union Government has given assurances of full support and co-operation. The route from London to Cape Town will be the longest commercial air route in the world.

Wed Lily Damita? Not Yet, Says Prince

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3 (INS)—Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia, grandson of the former Kaiser, denied again today the rumor that he was engaged to marry Lily Damita, vivacious French film player. He declared he would not marry until he is at least 30.

"Naturally I should seek out Miss Damita in Hollywood. We were good friends in Europe and still are. There is absolutely no truth to rumors we are engaged, however."

Festival for Church

A dance festival is announced to take place Friday evening, May 17, in the parish house of Christ Church, Hyde Park, sponsored by members of the parish, the proceeds to be devoted to the repair fund of the church. Mrs. W. J. Ripley is the director.

Name Honor Pupils at Dedham High

The honor pupils for graduation next month at the Dedham High School, as announced by Principal Ralph A. Eaton, are Joseph Glynn and Gertrude Barnes. Mr. Glynn was selected by the faculty and Miss Barnes chosen by popular vote of her class. The other honor pupils are Margaret Carlson, Ruth McManus, Florence Newman and Rhoda Pratt. The exercises will take place on June 14.

Brockton Athlete Hit by Auto May Die

Brockton, May 3—Running toward his home through blinding rain early today, Henry Smolenski, 29, former basketball and baseball star of Brockton high school, was dangerously injured by an automobile.

At the Brockton Hospital it was found he was suffering from concussion of the brain. The automobile was operated by Harry J. Shapira of Plymouth st.

Buildings Damaged in Pittsburgh Blast

Pittsburgh, May 3—One man was injured seriously and half a dozen buildings were damaged by a bomb which exploded in front of a lunch room at 6th and Wylie ave., in the "Hill District." Police, who investigated, said they knew of no reason for the bombing. No arrests were made. The injured man is John Anderson.

Corns Lift Right Off!

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and calluses lift right off! You'll laugh—it is so easy and doesn't hurt a bit!

Just drop "Freezone" on any tender, touchy corn. Instantly it stops aching; then shortly you just lift that old bothersome corn right off with your fingers. It works like a charm, every time. Seems magic!

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store. Try it!

Learning new secrets of Cooking

HOME makers are finding that "radio meals" offer the most delightful variety and make work so much easier.

You learn not only new recipes, but the exact temperature at which the heat control indicator of your gas range is to be set.

You can place an entire dinner in the oven and forget it until meal time. This makes cooking almost automatic and gives many extra hours for other things.

Heat control is just one of many remarkable conveniences to be found on the newest type gas ranges.

Your gas company will be glad to show them to you.

While you are there, you surely will want to see other wonder-working appliances that the gas industry has provided for happier, easier, more progressive living.

Some of them are, for example, water heaters, laundry dryers, house heaters, fireplaces, incinerators, radiators, garage heaters, refrigerators, etc.

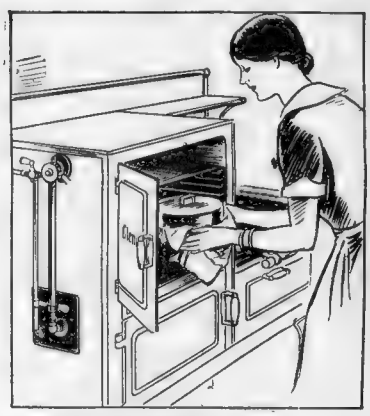
You can purchase any of them for a small amount down with easy terms for the balance.

Cook with Gas ...THE BETTER FUEL

Ask your gas company for free booklet, "Gas—The Servant of Mankind." It tells the romantic story of gas—how to select and care for gas appliances—and contains new ideas for housekeeping. Write, phone or call for your copy.

THE GAS INDUSTRY OF NEW ENGLAND
OF WHICH YOUR OWN GAS COMPANY IS A PART

1879 — 1929
Fiftieth Anniversary



After all,

when it comes to ovens . . .
there's nothing like an Insulated Glenwood

THERE are no better judges of good baking and good ovens than the housewives of New England.

That is why we have always given so much thought to maintaining the Glenwood reputation for thorough, even baking. It's also the reason why every Glenwood oven for the past fifty years has been planned to make the best possible use of its fuel.

When the now famous Insulated Oven was the newest development in Glenwood Gas Ranges, it was welcomed chiefly as an improvement that made less gas do more work and helped to keep the kitchen cool in summer.

Now, it is still more widely known for its wonderfully even baking, its perfected ventilation, and its time and trouble-saving control of every cooking temperature by means of the Glenwood AutomatiCook.

Backed by the great resources of the Glenwood Range Company, developed by continuous and painstaking research, the Glenwood Insulated Oven has brought gas to its peak of perfection as a cooking fuel. You can see this oven . . . with its smooth-sliding, heavily enameled racks and its gleaming enamel finish, inside and out . . . in the latest models of the Glenwood Gas Ranges at the offices of your local gas company.

You can enjoy a Glenwood Gas Range even if you live beyond the gas mains. Write us about Pyrofax Gas Service.

FINAL PLANS COMPLETE FOR FIRST MEETING OF CLUB TOMORROW

ICE CREAM AND CANDY TREAT ARRANGED FOR MEMBERS

The big surprise we have planned for the meeting of our club tomorrow morning in the grand ball room of the Elks Hotel on Tremont st., is no longer a secret.

We are going to let every boy and girl of the club in on the secret. The treat is "Needums" and "Bunnies."

Now isn't that a funny surprise? Of courses every one of you will want to know what a "Needum" and a "Bunnie" is. Well first—a "Needum" is a bar of delicious chocolate-covered cream cocoanut square.

No, a "Bunnie" is not a new type of model airplane—it is ice cream, dispensed in a patented container by the Turner Centre System, one of the largest manufacturers of milk and cream products in New England. "Needums" and Turner Centre "Bunnies" are both New England products, manufactured under the most sanitary conditions possible, in modern plants.

Now we will give out 2000 of these ice cream Bunnies" and 5000 "Needum" candy bars to the boys and girls attending our first meeting at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow. We guess YOU will be there. These gifts to the boys and girls of the Boston American Club are made possible through the courtesy of the management of the two firms.

But aside from the attractions for you there will be a grand demonstration of model airplane flying. There will be all sorts of planes exhibited. So every boy and girl who wants to have some real fun should come and see what other children are doing with their model planes. Frank Tonis, model airplane expert, who has built hundreds of these little planes, will help you in your plane building problems.

BOY SCOUTS USHERS

There will be a troop of Boy Scouts under the direction of Dun- can MacKellar, scout field executive, on hand to act as ushers and direct you to the proper place.

We are making wonderful progress in sending out the tickets to members of our club for B. F. Keith's Boston Theater. In a few days we ought to have the entire 50,000 mailed out, that is one to each member.

Now don't forget your essay on "What Lindy Means to Me." You know your chance to visit Washington next month will depend solely upon yourself. If you make up your mind you are going to be one of the 12 boys and girls to make this trip as guests of the Boston Evening American, you will be one. An essay of 50 words or more is all that is asked of you.

Our club is divided into two divisions, a junior division for boys and girls between 8 and 12, a senior division for boys and girls between 12 and 18.

The six boys and girls of each division who write the best essays will make this trip. They will be selected by a board of judges composed of prominent persons, to be announced later. So the boy or girl who lives in Maine or New Hampshire will have just as much a chance as the child who lives in Boston or any other part of Massachusetts.

Remember midnight on May 22 is the deadline for sending in your essays. So write yours now, and mail it to Boston American Boys' and Girls' Club Editor, P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass.

Enthusiasm for Club at High Pitch

The Boston Evening American today publishes another list of club members. Every member of our club will receive a ticket to B. F. Keith's Boston Theater regardless of whether his name has appeared in print. So if you haven't seen your name, don't worry. We have it on a membership list.

The names of new club members who live outside Greater Boston will appear only in the following editions: Special Edition, Home Edition and Night Edition.

If you live in Greater Boston you will find your name in the Peach Edition, the Peach Sports Edition or the 7 P. M. Final Edition. Watch the list daily for your name.

BRAVES BATTLE PIRATES TOMORROW

MR. BOSTON
by JACK CONWAY

"THE death of T. A. Dorgan, better known under his pen name of Tad, takes from the sport world one of its greatest characters," said Mr. Boston today. "He was the world's leading sport cartoonist, while he did not have an equal when it came to originating wise cracks or writing stories on boxing.

"Tad came from the Pacific Coast school of journalism. He was schooled with Rube Goldberg, Bill McGeehan and Hype Igoe. They all cast East about the same time and proved successful in New York.

"For years Tad covered all major sporting events. His cartoons created national comment and helped to establish this important branch of the newspaper.

"Bob Edgren is the only cartoonist whose work at the ringside compared favorable with that of Tad.

"Tad was great as a cartoonist and writer. He had a way in making a cartoon or in writing a story that was different.

"The reason for Tad's success can be written in three words. HE KNEW LIFE. When a young newspaper reporter on the Coast, he lived and associated with the people he wrote about.

"When Tad was assigned to cover a major boxing attraction, he didn't attempt to high hat the boxers. He mingled with them, lived at their training camps, played cards and chatted with them during their hours of leisure and in this way got the real low down on things.

"TAD was at Reno, Nev., back in July, 1910, when Jim Jeffries was trying to stage a comeback against Jack Johnson. There was tremendous interest in that bout on account of the racial rivalries.

"Tad, as was his custom, spent much time at the camps of Jeffries and Johnson. His expert eye noticed that Jeff was working under a strain and was worried, while Johnson would play the banjo for him by the hour and get enjoyment out of song and story.

"After making these observations, Tad sent a story to this newspaper in which he declared Johnson would knock Jeffries out. It was a bold prediction, but it was a true one.

"Tad, the born reporter, had got the low down on the Reno situation by close association with the rival fighters.

"One does not gain real information when a mere observer at a training camp. One does not get the story of the dormitory and the kitchen in such a way. A fighter can hide his real feelings during a brief workout in public, but he cannot conceal his physical and mental condition during the hours he spends behind the doors of his training camp.

"TAD had as much courage as any man that ever entered a boxing ring. For years he has been a semi-invalid, unable to take in the big sporting events of which he wrote for so many years. But yet he managed to write a daily column and complete a cartoon each day. A weak heart was the cause of Tad's trouble.

"TAD was fortunate in having a brother, Ike Dorgan. It was Ike who furnished Tad's principle contact with the outside world. For years Ike was Tex Rickard's ballyhoo king. He was a big cog in the Rickard machine. He was behind the scenes and in a position to know the inside story of things. He always kept his brother informed as to what was happening in sport.

"The many friends Tad had made during his years in sport also communicated with him.

"TAD had a bungalow on Long Island. His nose came to over the radio and telephone. In the summer months, he would move into New York and take a suite on the top floor of a hotel, where he found it easier to breathe.

"The old-time boxers will miss Tad. He knew most of them, had seen them in their important bouts, and liked to write about them.

"THE young newspaper reporter and cartoonist can profit if he studies the life of Tad. He will find that he knew his subject and loved his work, that he carried on in the face of a severe illness, and that he proved that accuracy as to details is necessary if one is to stand out in any line.

"We shall miss your writings, cartoons and leadership, T. A. Dorgan."

Al Mello Is Picked to Defeat Jones

TRIBE STILL AT LEAGUE PEAK

By NICK FLATLEY

Boston fans are taking a breather today to get ready for the most enthusiastic baseball explosion that has rocked these parts in quite a time.

The Braves are home and start a stand against the West tomorrow at the Wigwam. And the Braves, as you know, are in first place.

It is only the beginning of the season to be sure, but that does not bother the boys. The Tribe has won seven games out of nine, and that is considered a fitting evidence of real class.

Nick Flatley

There will be great crowds at the big ball yard tomorrow and Sunday; not sellouts, for that orchard seats more than 40,000, but gangs that knock local records flat. Unless the weather jinx comes back with the Tribe.

It is easy to gather from advance sale reports, and past demands, that Sunday, if it's a fair, warm day, will have more than 30,000 cheering rooters at Braves Field. And the opening with the Pirates tomorrow may click that figure, too.

May be significant of something or other that the Pirates were present the last time the orchard was crowded to the last possible seat. The opening whirl of the Tribe has put the fans in rare good mood, and a good showing against these tough teams from the far parts will hoist the club into the big money class.

Judge Fuchs isn't claiming any pennants, but he is cheering for his ball club.

"Sure, we were lucky to win some of those ball games," he observes, "but what winning club isn't lucky. I am tickled to death, not so much by the victories, as the way the whole gang went after ball games. We pulled some of them out of the fire by the finest hustling, fighting spirit I've seen since I've been in baseball.

CLUB HAS NERVE

"We had as much soft pitching as the other fellows, but the crowd kept plugging along, and won out as much by nerve and sticking in there, as by base hits.

"I think Harper has given us the long distance punch we needed, and I know the Rabbit and Maguire furnish a second base combination that's the best in the league. Our pitching has been good for the spring, and there you are.

"I think this Brave team will play good ball right along. The fire is there and Johnny Evers and Hank Gowdy know how to keep it going. We'll try to give 'em all a run for their money. The Braves may be licked, but they are not to be doormats."

EVERS, GOWDY HAPPY

Evers and Gowdy, the strategists who are assisting the judge in his amazing managerial venture, seriously declare that the club has a real chance to stick right up in the first division. They produce facts and figures. They believe it themselves, and so do all the athletes.

Just that idea will make the club dangerous. With the whole month of May to work at home, in a decidedly friendly atmosphere, the future is roseate, anyhow.

The team will work out at the Wigwam today, with principal attention being devoted to batting practice. The fielding has been more than satisfactory. The team, be it known, is leading the league in fielding, as well as in percentage.

Salo Closing Up on Gavuzzi in Derby

Miami, Okla., May 3 (INS)—John Salo, Passaic, N. J., policeman, continued to cut down the advantage of Pete Gavuzzi, leader in elapsed time as the C. C. Pyle's bunioneers continued their journey across the country today.

Salo tied with Sam Richman of New York, for first place in the 36.7-mile run from Joplin, Mo., the time was 4.36.50.

BROOKLINE IS CHOICE TO WIN SCHOOL MEET

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

A brilliant band of schoolboy athletes from all parts of Massachusetts and a representation from Maine will gather at the Heights tomorrow afternoon for the 10th annual Boston College interscholastic track and field meet.

The B. C. interscholastics have grown from a meet of small proportions to one of the big attractions of the schoolboy spring track season. Three hundred and fifty athletes from 22 schools will break all records tomorrow when the first event is called at 2.

It is the first spring showing for most of the teams and the lads are ready to get under way. Which will mean many fine races for those fans who gather for the Maroon and Gold tournament.

Brookline high school won in 1925. The race this year is going to be as close as that of a year ago with Brookline again favored. Lowell, Lawrence, Boston English, Mechanics, Attleboro, Arlington, Lynn Classical and Lynn English all have good teams.

The schools entered are Arlington, Attleboro, Beverly, Boston College high, English high, Boston Latin, Bridgton Academy, Brighton, Brookline, Commerce, Concord, Dorchester, Huntington, Hyde Park, Jamaica Plain, Lawrence Academy, Lawrence high, Lowell, Lynn Classical, Lynn English, Medway, Mechanic Arts, Milton, New Prep, Newton Prep school, Norwood, Roxbury Latin, Salem, Somerville, Swampscott and Winthrop.

Thibodeau of Bridgton Academy won the 100-yard dash a year ago, but he is not among the entries this spring. Dineen of Lawrence, who finished second to Thibodeau, should be among the leaders.

Constantine Satchbell of Brighton, Gleason of Lowell, John Hayes of Somerville, McManus of Mechanics, Flannery of Concord, and Badarracco of Brookline constitute a crack field. It is one of the fastest groups of schoolboy dashmen that ever faced a starter's gun.

ATHLETICS LOOK GOOD TO A. L. HEAD

Chicago, May 3 (AP)—After a swing around the circuit, President E. S. Barnard is more convinced than ever that the Yankees have a real fight on their hands in the American League pennant race this season.

"Just keep your eyes on Philadelphia," Barnard said. "They are going to surprise everybody. They are dangerous from the top of the batting order down to the eighth man, and I believe they have shake off their old jinx of failing in the pinch.

"The Yankees so far have shown they do not have the steadiness of recent campaigns. This is indicated by their record of this spring as compared to last. At this time in 1928, they had rolled up a record of 11 victories against three defeats and were well out. The difference can be attributed to a weakening of their pitching staff. "St. Louis is another club worth watching."

Fator Riding Many Winners at Jamaica

New York, May 3—Laverne Fator, contract rider for the Rancocas stable of Harry Sinclair, is well on his way for leading rider honors on the New York tracks.

In the seven days of racing at Jamaica, Fator has had 24 mounts. Nine times he has ridden the winner and three times the place horse.

WIN MEANS TITLE GO FOR AL.

By JACK CONWAY

Al Mello, New England welterweight champion and twice conqueror of Joe Dundee, will make his debut in the New York Garden tonight when he clashes with Gorilla Jones of Akron, O., in a 10-round bout.

It will be Mello's first major effort in a New York ring since he was defeated by Ace Hudkins in a 10-round tussle at the Queensboro Stadium almost two years ago.

Mello's smashing victories over Dundee in Boston were watched Matchmaker Tom McArdle to seek his services.

Jack Conway

Mello will be seconded tonight by Bobby Goldman, his manager, and Eddie Devine. They have been in his camp since he was drifting in the minors. Jones has a reputation as being a rugged, two fisted middleweight and he is expected to make things interesting for the New England champion.

If Mello comes through with a win over Jones, he will be matched to battle Joe Dundee in a ten-round bout for the world's welterweight championship.

British Golfers Eat Unwisely

By JOHNNY FARRELL
American Open Golf Champion

EDINBURGH, Scotland, May 3—Many have striven to furnish an answer to the question: "What's wrong with British golf?" It has been an absorbing interrogation even among English and Scotchmen who have come to the conclusion that there must be considerable wrong somewhere.

My young friend Harry Cotton, who was with us during our journeyings in the south of the United States this past winter, has told his countrymen that conservatism, as they apply it to the game of golf, is one drawback.

Now Archie Compston—that tall, strong Englishman who appears to be continually scowling at the world but isn't—declares that stricter training is needed in his homeland as a stimulant toward better golf. Compston has paid two visits to the United States. He has been a close observer of our methods and manner of preparing for championship events.

Compston has come to the conclusion that the mere matter of lunch can affect a startling change in a man's form. Archie declares, for example:

"One man, who has broken the record of the course with his first round, goes out in the afternoon for a cold roast beef and cold pie, and finds that he cannot hit a single putt, while another, who has spent half the morning in the rough, emerges from the clubhouse like a giant refreshed, to do hole after hole in par. I used to be content to accept such vagaries of form as part of the luck of the game. It is only lately that I have been brought to realize that the lunch itself is a thing which has a good deal to do with the question.

"In America no first-class player, whether amateur or professional, would dream of taking a heavy meal in between two championship rounds. A glass of milk and one or two chicken sandwiches is usually all that they permit themselves and I have proved by personal experience that it is a sound plan."

"The other day I came across a saying attributed to Mr. 'Bob' Harris, the British amateur champion of 1924, to the effect that 'in youth, golf is played by strength and skill; between the ages of 35 and 40 by the head; but, after 40, entirely by the stomach.

"My American friends have convinced me that the stomach is an important factor at any stage of life. I have found myself that the habit of a light lunch between rounds has benefitted my general form a great deal. I am often asked whether I seriously consider that our young golfers ought to adopt a definite system of dieting and training. Most certainly I do.

Harvard Nine Tackles St. Bonaventure Tomorrow

HUB MEN ON NEW YORK TEAM

St. Bonaventure Team Ready to Give Crimson Tough Time at Soldiers Field

St. Bonaventure College nine tackles Harvard tomorrow at Soldiers Field. Greater Boston men on the New York college team, who have been playing good ball this season, will help their club give the Crimson a tough time.

Jo-Jo Conlon, four-letter man at Boston College high school in 1922-1923, is rounding out his fourth season as a regular on the Brown and White squad. Conlon, who captained the B. C. high club in '23, is one of the leading hitters on the St. Bonaventure team.

Conlon went to New York State school after two years at St. Anselm's and has earned his letter for the past three years in football and baseball.

Tom O'Connor, Medford high captain of football in 1925 and former Dean Academy receiver, will probably see action against the Crimson, as his heavy hitting in last week's games have made him a serious contender for the first string post.

Fred Ostergren, former Holy Cross baseball and grid leader, is coaching St. Bonaventure and has this season moulded together one of the finest small college clubs in the country.

Haney, Bonaventure southpaw speed artist, is slated to oppose the Crimson tomorrow.

B.C. GRIDMEN ON TRACK SQUAD

Two sophomore football stars will try to help the Boston College track team collect a victory over Colby when the teams clash at Waterville, Me., tomorrow afternoon.

They are Al Morelli and Henry Buckley, two men who have been added to the B. C. squad since the levy meet. Both are entered in the shot put and should win points.

Coach Ryder was convinced from a showing of his field department against the Middies that he had to beef up some new material and Morelli and Buckley have been added to the squad as the result of a slight shift in the personnel of the outfit.

Morelli is a gridiron giant. He weighs 215 pounds. He never put the shot before the Interclass meet and then won a second place just a few inches behind the captain of the track team, Wilczewski.

'Tad' One of Gamest of Men—Runyon

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, May 3—The music stops—"Tad" is dead!

A ray of sunshine across this old world has been turned to shadow. A peal of joyous laughter has been suddenly hushed.

And the hearts of many men and women are very, very sad. "Tad" is dead!

He was sleeping, they say, at his home in Great Neck when death whispered that he was never again to open his eyes. Sleeping the sleep of a tired little boy, for though 52 years had passed over his head that was all "Tad" ever was in his soul—a little boy.

So his spirit quit his mortal shell quietly, but those who know of the gritty battle that he put up against illness for years are quite sure that "Tad" went head up and unbounted. Well might they write his epitaph in his own picturesque idiom "a dead game guy."

Thomas Aloysius Dorgan was his full name, and from the initials came the "Tad" under which he won fame as the greatest of all our cartoonists. He was more than a cartoonist. He was a reporter in the process of human life. He was a modern Hogarth.

In a fighter or a ball player, or any other athlete, "Tad" admired gameness more than anything else, and he had that quality in him 24 karat pure, though he may not have known it. He fought physical adversity nearly all his life, and the battle never worried him.

Consider this: As a boy he met with an accident that maimed his right hand. I think he got the hand caught in a rope that was towing a house which was being moved from one point to another. "Tad" learned to draw with his left hand—learned to draw so well that he surpassed all the cartoonists of his time.

Then at the height of his career, he was stricken with heart trouble that compelled his retirement to a seclusion that cut him off almost completely from the life he loved, that prohibited him from going anywhere or doing anything, yet from that seclusion he carried on, know that death was just behind his door every hour of the day, and carried on to such effect that few of his tremendous public had any inkling that he wasn't as hale and active as in the days of his youth.

NONE GAMER

Game, say they never made 'em any gamer than this long, lean fellow from "south of the slot" out in San Francisco, where his name and memory will always be revered. He was a great man. Sick, or well, he was a great man. He was the biggest figure that sport has produced in many years, though I doubt if posterity will assign him entirely to sport. He was too big for sport alone.

"Tad" had a penchant for nicknames. I always thought it was because of his habit of mind to take a short cut to what he wanted to say, a habit that was best expressed in his writings.

"Tad" was a staunch friend, but he was also a good hater. Long ago, when he was a youngster, he was sent to interview John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, and McGraw rebuffed him in some manner. "Tad" never forgot, and if McGraw has ever wondered at the industry "Tad" exerted in former years to hold him up to public laughter, this may enlighten him.

Arthur Brisbane, the mightiest of the modern journalists, and the man who brought "Tad" out, and by suggestion and direction made the cartoonist the foremost figure of his field, once said that a great writer was spoiled when "Tad" picked up a drawing pencil, and that estimate is undoubtedly true.

ADMIRED BRISBANE

He could think very fast, that "Tad," in times of emergency, for one of my memories of him was to do with a little dice game that was in progress, against strict orders, in the cartoonists' room of the old Journal, when in walked Mr. Brisbane.

"Bud" Fisher was there. Also Harry J. Hirschfield, and Tom McNamara, and Tom Powers, and George McManus, and others whose names are famous now, and who wouldn't think of descending to such pursuits as craps. But they were all young then, a rollicking, devil-may-care lot, and they were crouched on the floor deeply engrossed in this game.

The stakes in the crap game were necessarily small, because in those days the "cartoonists weren't getting the fabulous salaries that attach to their names now. The man who had the dice had his arm uplifted for a heave of the bones against the wall, and was calling on a nine with pathetic fervor when Mr. Brisbane entered.

The "runner" was immediately frozen into an attitude like a pointer dog on a stand, and a dead silence fell over the group as the editor walked up to them and stood looking calmly down. "Tad" recovered first.

"There's a quarter open," he said quietly to Mr. Brisbane. "Do you want it?"

It will be a long time before we see another "Tad" as a cartoonist. It will be a longer time before we see another "Tad" as a man. And if I have seemed "at some here at any stage, I hope the reader will bear in mind that I write of him from a full heart. He was my friend.

Horsemen's Strike at Aurora Nears Termination

TRACK TO OPEN UPON RETURN OF STRIKERS

Aurora, Ill., May 3 (AP)—The horsemen's strike, which has delayed the opening of Chicago's racing season at Arrora Tracks for three days, neared termination today.

It was virtually certain the track would open tomorrow with the strikers running their horses.

Although no compromise has been effected, the strikers believe they have found a legal method to collect 1 per cent of all winning moneys for the upkeep of their organization, the Thoroughbred Horse Association

HORSEMEN'S PLANS.

Their plan calls for each horseman, desiring to contribute to the association, to present track officials a written assignment of the purse portion he desires to go to the organization. Such a deduction has been one of the principal demands of the strikers, but the track officials refused to make a blanket collection.

Another demand of the strikers for increased purses, will be forgotten if the track officials agree to their deduction plan, one of their leaders intimated. Clifford Trimble, general manager of the Aurora course, said such a deduction plan was agreeable to him.

AWAIT PEACE.

Today both sides were awaiting each other's move toward peace.

Trimble withdrew his ultimatum last night, which demanded the horsemen race or get their horses out of the track stables, indicating his belief that peace was imminent.

12 College Crews Row on Housatonic

Cowby, Ct., May 3 (CNS)—Twelve college crews, sporting the colors of Yale, Pennsylvania and Columbia, were to take long spins on the Housatonic today in preparation for the first triangular regatta of the rowing season tomorrow. The Columbia crews will be the last on the scene, being scheduled to arrive at noon today.

The Columbia varsity is a slight favorite, due to its easy victory over the Navy, and the fact that the men have been rowing together all spring. Yale has never lost the varsity race in the Blackwell Cup regatta, however, and the Elis are confident of victory, despite numerous shakeups in their shell.

Penn is conceded an outside chance. The four Red and Blue crews worked out both in the morning and afternoon yesterday.

Boxing Legal in Hawaii

Honolulu, May 3 (AP)—Governor Wallace R. Farrington has signed the bill which permits and regulates ten-round professional and amateur boxing matches in the Hawaiian Islands.

Lowell Defeats Manchester Nine

Lowell, May 3—Lowell got away to an auspicious home start in the New England League race by defeating Manchester, 8 to 3, in the opening game in Lowell.

About 1000 fans turned out to welcome the return of league ball to the city. After the flag raising, during which a quartet sang "The Star Spangled Banner," Mayor Braden pitched the first ball and the game was on.

Lowell got the jump at the start, scoring six runs in the first inning as a result of solid hitting and ineffective work by Pitcher Lovely.

Marvin Heads Big Horse Association

Lexington, Ky., May 3—Charles E. Marvin was elected president of the Thoroughbred Horse Association for the coming year at a recent meeting of the association.

Marvin is a Blue Grass breeder of Scott County. A. B. Letcher of New Orleans was elected vice-president and F. A. Forsythe of Lexington was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

The domineering, or to be more explicit, the insulting attitude of a certain member of a W. G. A. team has caused much general comment and criticism.

It is rumored that this most offensive player will be absent, by request, from all future matches.

In every branch of sports altercations arise, but when one player openly insults her or his opponent, it is time to take action and rid the game of the offenders.

After a recent match, the opponent of the above referred to player was so upset by occurences on the links, that she was so nervous she could hardly sign her caddy's card. The actions of the offending player were as offensive to her own teammates as they were to members of opposing teams.

Although most of the star combinations were in action at Woodland during the opening day of the annual four-ball tournament there were no sensational scores turned in. Forty teams were in action at Woodland and Frank Clough expect over 100 more today.

Three of the topnotch teams, Phillips Finlay-Bill Arnold, Eddie Murphy-Frank Rapp and Carl Nebblebald and Charlie Vickory, were unable to put together a gross better ball under 70.

Perley Crosby of Woodland and Billy McPhail of Belmont, who are odds-on favorites to win the low gross, will play late this afternoon. Crosby and Tommy Welsh led the field last year and the long-hitting Woodlander is anxious to duplicate that feat with his new partner.

The W. G. A. is holding its first open handicap medal play tournament of the season today at the Charles River Country Club.

At last the New England Professional Golfers' Organization has been prevailed upon to have some privacy during its annual meeting. For years the annual meeting was held at Norfolk after the first tournament and it was like an open forum. Anyone could listen in and there was absolutely no attention paid to the business of the meeting.

This year, the N. E. P. G. O. will hold its meeting at Charles Wasmuth's, where a section of the rapidly expanding cafe will be reserved for the pros.

Miss Marie Bourneuf has been assigned to a regular berth on the Midland District first team. Miss Bourneuf has been on the winning end of six matches this season, four of which were with the second team, where she played at No. 1, and the other two with the first team.

Miss Bourneuf's latest victim was Miss Cynthia Wesson, who had a clean slate until she encountered the Midlander on Thursday.

The remarkable spurt which the Bras Burn team has made is the talk of the W. G. A. A week ago, Brae Burn was in last place, but after winning four consecutive matches, the West Newton team is now tied for first place with Midland.

Goodwin Entry Pimlico Winner

Baltimore, May 3—The Maryland flag was raised in the first running of the Billy Barton steeplechase at Pimlico a year ago when Dr. J. Fred Adams' Gracie won, but today, in the second classic the Massachusetts emblem was hoisted when Augustus F. Goodwin's Land Boy was returned the victor over Maryland's representative, John Busley, Jr.'s Danopio.

Land Boy, piloted by S. J. V. Davis, scored impressively, a dozen lengths or more over Danopio, with William B. Street in the saddle. This Baltimore county horse was more than that distance in front of Mrs. David Dallas Odell's Glance, which was ridden by D. D. Odell. Fourth place was won by Wesson Seyburn's Dragon De Vertu, which was coupled with Danopio.

Gould Elected

Hanover, N. H., May 3—Avery H. Gould of Brooklyn was elected captain of the gym team at a banquet held by the letter men.

St. Anselm's Downs Eaglets at Heights

Log Page's varsity Boston College baseball team had four runs at Lee Heights stuck out 12 batters and St. Anselm's went base to Manchester with a 4-to-2 victory.

Lovable Jack Quinn went up for the Manchester nine in the first inning, connected for a three bagger. Two more men were on the bases before Quinn was out at the plate after a shutdown between third and home.

In the second inning, St. Anselm's filled once. Murray, on first by the four-ball method, coming home on Paden's double.

The Eaglets tied the score a third ball for some reason when Dowler slipped one across the plate on a similar blow by Nicolocha.

Three Licensed

Lexington, Ky., May 3—Trainers' licenses have been issued to J. Meeks, W. P. Carroll and B. Rogers, and George Cimerak has been granted an apprentice permit.

DE VITO DOWNS STASIAK

Joe De Vito of Providence scored two straight falls over Stanley Stasiak in the main bout at the Arena.

De Vito won the first fall after 43 minutes and 10 seconds of grappling. He used his favorite hold, the reverse head scissors.

In his second fall he used the flying tackle, pinning his opponent to the mat in eight minutes, 43 seconds. Stasiak was released by the younger man.

Charlie Metro of Salem went down to defeat at the hands of Stanley Pinto, Bohemian champion.

In another bout Andy Brown, a New Yorker, lost to Bob McCoy of Cambridge.

Farmer George McLeod and Pat McGill of Somerville, wait to a draw in 40 minutes.

George Chapman Now Training Hard

New York, May 3—George Chapman, regarded as one of America's outstanding contenders for the [illegible] is training twice every day. Chapman put up a [illegible] for the title last season, only to lose out when he had a bad fall late in the year.

George [illegible] every morning and day, where he kept in excellent condition swimming and fishing, since returning he has been living on the bicycle saucer.

Chapman held the title six years in a row, and is confident he can bring the championship back to America this season.

Chapman will race at the Velodrome Sunday afternoon in a 15-mile motorpaced race against Franco George and Victor Hopkins.

Breaks Down

Havre de Grace, Md., May 3—W. Trundall's Jacksonville broke down in her works. She is destined for the breeding farm.

B.C., B.U. NINES IN SECOND TILT

Boston College and Boston University will settle their diamond dispute for 1928 in the shadows of the Boston College towers tomorrow. The game will not get under way until the schoolboy meet is finished, which should be about 4.30.

Since Boston College won the first clash at Riverside by a score of 10-1 it is expected that B. U. will be after to take off another drubbing beating even though it will be bolstered by the return of George Arkin and Sheehan veterans, who were missing in the first contest.

Coach Dave Morey intends to start Bo Cummin southpaw, Lyle on the mound. This youngster pitched fine innings against Holy Cross in the first game and looked very good.

Made in Brockton District Means Better Shoes
Generations of experience in shoe making in the Brockton District—where the finest men's shoes in the world are made—and where our factories are located at Bridgewater, Mass., has built up a skill and knowledge of shoe manufacturing that is reflected in the high quality of every pair of the 25,000 pairs of shoes we can turn out daily in our factories.
GENUINE OAK LEATHER SOLES—taken from the head of the hide, stout insoles—that keep the shoe looking good and in shape. Goodyear stitch—the same as hand sewed method, but done by machinery for mass production—and selling through our own stores from Gulf to Great Lakes—at the smallest margin of profit ever attempted in the shoe world—by scientific management and distribution—spells the saving of two to four dollars a pair to you. Buy John Bright's—get real shoe making and save the difference.
Sturdy and Stylish OXFORDS
FOR the man who seeks style, here is an aristocrat among shoes, styled to suit the most particular wearer. For the man who seeks value, here is a shoe that packs into a three dollar and fifty cent price, more high grade materials and more fine workmanship than any man would ever expect to get at anywhere near so low a price.

Come in. Try a pair of No. 168 on.
Learn for yourself just what John Bright values mean. Examine any shoe in our stock. Feel of the leather. Notice how the shoe is made. Pay particular attention to the styles. Be just as critical as you can. You'll find it hard to believe that you are looking at a $3.50 shoe—and in fact if it were not for our maker to wearer selling policy in a nation-wide chain of stores, it wouldn't be a $3.50 shoe, it would just have to be sold for more

Strong Private School Nines to War Tomorrow

EXETER VS. HARVARD YEARLINGS

By DICK McSWEENEY

A fine array of first-class ball games is on the schoolboy program tomorrow.

Private, suburban and High games will furnish the action at various schoolboy diamonds

Leading the private school attractions are the Andover-Yale fresh; Exeter-Harvard fresh; and B. C. fresh-St. John's prep clashes.

Other good private school melees are: Holy Cross fresh at Dean academy, Dummer academy at Groton, B. U. fresh at Huntington, St. Mark's at Middlesex, Keene Normal at Lawrence academy, St. Michael's at Winooski, Tabor academy at Pomfret, and Berwick academy at Methuen.

One of the best of the suburban tilts will be played at Medford where Haverhill is being entertained. Medford has not shown well at all this year. The boys lack confidence.

Spalding hasn't been hurling in same brand of ball which made him a distinguished member of the Blue and White nine last year. Bob McCarthy, behind the bat, is doing very well, both catching and at bat. Ober and Wright are satisfactory outfielders, but the infield lacks a steady player who would keep the others cool-headed.

Jim Mansfield formerly coached baseball at Medford and would be extremely pleased with a win over the Mystic outfit.

Coach Edmund Goodreau has all Malden fandom talking about his Blue and Gold nine. That 7-0 old walloping which Malden handed to Medford has brightened up the boys a lot, and the Goodreau machine will be in perfect mental condition when it invades Brockton.

It's a sure win for Malden if Jim Kelley or George Beaman hurl. This pair is right in the front rank of schoolboy pitchers.

Twomey, Brockton hurler, who fanned 16 batters in a game with Quincy recently, will probably pitch for the Red and Black.

Suburban skyrockets will ascend when Everett and Somerville collide at Dilboy field. D'Angelo and Ward are pitching classy ball for the Gilnea outfit, but Somerville has a pair of excellent pitchers in Hall and Hutchinson. Somerville plays a snappy brand of ball.

Boston English visits Haverhill for an afternoon with St. James high. Its either McLean or Tamulis hurling for the Blue and Blue and when these boys toe the mound, the opposition is apt to curl up.

HIS BATTING EXPECTED TO AID SOX

Elliott Bigelow, slugging outfielder of the Red Sox, who is expected to break into the lineup when the Hose start their invasion of the West. He is a terrific slugger, but a weak throwing arm has kept him on the bench. The wing is coming around now, and Bill Carrigan is planning to use him. (A. P. photo.)

Dawson Enters British Open

Chicago, May 3 (AP)—Johnny Dawson of Chicago, Southwestern amateur champion, has entered the British national amateur tournament.

Dalton High Nine Meets St. Joseph's

Dalton, May 3—The Dalton high team will pry the lid off its home baseball season tomorrow afternoon, when St. Joseph's high of North Adams will be entertained at Pine Grove park in a Northern Berkshire League game.

Bill Kennedy, who was late in reporting for practice, will do the twirling for the Papertown nine.

Lott Off of Davis Cup Team

Chicago, May 3 (AP)—Because of his studies at the University of Chicago, George Lott will lose his place on the American Davis Cup tennis team this year. Lott is third ranking player of the United States.

HIS "LAST SERMON"

(Rogers, Ark., Democrat)

"A dinner and social evening was held at the Presbyterian church last night in the nature of a farewell for Dr. and Mrs. R. L. King, who leave next week for their new home and pastorate in Chicago. There was a tinge of sadness over all at the parting of the pastor and family. Dr. King preaches his last sermon next Sunday morning."

WILL YOU MAKE A HOME FOR KIDDIES?

Free samples, like above, sent on request.

It has become necessary for Aunt Bella to find homes for several hundred children who were left in her department by mistake during the past year. Thoughtless parents often come rushing into Aunt Bella's Question and Answer Department, and after getting free advice, ask Aunt Bella to look after their kids for a minute. This she is glad to do. But sometimes years go by, and the absent-minded parents fail to return. Consequently Aunt Bella has hundreds of little mouths to slap. So it occurred to her that there are many homes that never hear the gladsome ring of childish laughter.

BATTLES FOR CONTROL MORE NUMEROUS

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

Phase of the stocks world that has been escaping attention is the growing number of battles for corporation control in recent months. First come the struggle between Rockefeller-Stewart factions in Standard Oil of Indiana. Then came the ousting of the Childs from the Childs Co. Then came the struggle for control of Loft's and now we have the internal war for control of the great Foundation Co. These conflicts, in at least some cases, have had their start in the scattering of shares due to the great markets and taking of profits therein.

H. P. Davis, vice-president of Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., formerly in charge of manufacturing operations, is henceforth to give his time to directing the company's radio operations. Mr. Davis, who was born in Somersworth, N. H., is known as "the Father of Broadcasting." This is because he opened the first broadcasting station in America.

The Boston Five Cents Saving Bank, "the School St. Bank," celebrates this week its 75th anniversary, having been opened on May 3, 1854. From a modest beginning of a first day's business which consisted of 135 deposits, aggregating $1642.23—ranging from 5 cents—there were four of that amount—and one each of 8 cents, 31 cents, 38 cents 42 cents and up to one deposit of $500—this savings institution has grown to be "a bank for the multitude." It has opened since its first day practically 1,000,000 accounts and having at the present time over 177,000 depositors and assets of over $10,000,000. During this period the bank has paid approximately $70,000,000 in interest. The bank was founded and is governed by three generations of Evans, Alonzo H., 1854 to 1907; Wilmot R., 1907 to 1926; Wilmot R., Jr., 1926, and at present head of the bank.

President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio reveals interesting history in this state Vermonter, one of America's leading railroad executives today. I have the following: If the miracle by the United States were all combined in twenty or thirty groups or systems, every one with the rate region in which it was located and each group so built up as to afford it reasonable equality of opportunity in originating traffic, as well as in its interchange and delivery, such an arrangement would very greatly simplify the problem of railroad regulation as it is today.

"Under such an arrangement there would no longer be any real reason for keeping in the Act the provision for recapture by the government, of one-half the earnings of the railroads above six per cent upon the value of their property used for transportation purposes. I happen to know that Senator Cummins himself expected that when consolidation should have been brought about that the recapture provision of the Act would be repealed, there being, in his opinion, no longer any occasion for it in our system of regulation."

Financial Press of New York, publishing the "Pocket Manual" distributed free by nearly all brokerage houses from month to month, makes an interesting announcement in connection with the May issue. It says: "Since the January, 1922, issue we have increased the markets from 28 to 44 and the EXPORT GRAIN RATES TO BE CUT BY R.R.

Washington, May 3—A farm relief plan consisting of reduced freight rates on grain has been adopted by presidents and traffic executives of Eastern railroads at the suggestion of the Hoover administration.

The reduction will assist farmers in selling surplus grain from last season before the new crops are on the market.

Subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the railroad representatives decided to lower the freight rates on export grain from Buffalo to the North Atlantic seaboard 2 cents a bushel, decrease the rail rate from Chicago to New York from 22½ cents per 100 pounds to 17 cents and lower the rate between St. Louis and New York from 26½ cents per 100 pounds to 20 cents.

Permission will be sought from the commission to make the new rate effective on short notice. The proposed rates would be discontinued September 30.

APRIL PROFITS TAKE A JUMP

April earnings reports are being eagerly awaited in Wall and State Streets. One of the first to appear, just made public, shows a handsome gain.

Net profits of the Jackson Motor Shaft Company for April are estimated at $60,000, after all charges, including federal taxes, or about 60 cts. a share on the 100,000 shares of no par value outstanding.

In April, 1928, the company reported net profits after charges and taxes of $38,743.

This covers both the regular and extra dividends, each of 50 cents a share, recently declared by the directors. This makes a total of $1.79 a share for the first four months of 1929, practically all of which was earned in February, March and April.

At the present rate of operation, total earnings for the current year are expected to exceed $5 per share.

Commenting on a changed condition previously noted in this column, Spencer Trask & Co. say: "The old practice of borrowing from the banks to finance temporary needs has been discontinued in many cases and in its place has come financing by the issuance and sale of common stock which, in its turn, finds its way back to the banks in the form of collateral against brokers' loans. These constitute a greater danger due to the fact that they represent, to all intents and purposes, a permanent form of borrowing instead of the temporary form of bank loans.

"It would appear, therefore, that funds are not available to the public indefinitely in financing stock market operations, whereas formerly they represented but temporary bank accommodation and were, therefore, more liquid. Our views on this subject coincide with those of Dr. H. Parker Willis, who, in a recently published article, called attention to the fact that too few people realize that the stock market and its borrowings cannot be separated from business itself. His opinion is that business needs a regular, steady supply of capital and certainly such fluctuations in the money market as have been witnessed during the past few months, as a result of stock market operations, do not furnish the requirements outlined by this economist."

Porto Rican Rules in Watt & Bond

In connection with the acquisition of controlling interest in Watt & Bond, Inc., Porto Rican-American Tobacco Co. may increase its outstanding 6 per cent convertible bonds by $1,200,000 and issue some 40,000 additional class "B" common shares. It is likely Porto Rican will take 15,000 shares of Watt & Bond Class "B" common, paying therefor 40,000 shares of its own Class "B" common and a cash sum, probably the proceeds of the sale of the additional bonds, states.

Speakeasy Gal

Lola Lane, leading lady of "Speakeasy," all talking photoplay, being shown at Modern and Beacon. Her sister is the prima donna of "Luckee Girl" at the Shubert Apollo.

MIDNIGHT SHOW AT MODERN

Two successful sisters in show business are in Boston this week. One is Lola Lane who is present in the midnight showing tonight at Modern and Beacon as the leading lady of "Speakeasy," all-dialogue picture, and the other is Leota Lane who is present at the Shubert Apollo Theater as the prima donna of "Luckee Girl."

By wire from Lola in Hollywood, Leota is invited to see her sister at the midnight showing tonight of "Speakeasy," at the Modern Theater.

Lola and Leota went parallel ways for a while until the lure of the silver sheet took Lola to Hollywood. Born in the little town of Indianola, Iowa, the two sisters were early designed for the stage amateur appearances made them in great demand until Gus Edwards saw them at a benefit performance in Des Moines and arranged for their appearance in the Greenwich Village Follies. A successful road tour followed with Lola as prima donna and her sister in the leading feminine role.

Lola reverted to musical comedy and vaude ville. Leota's career was shifted to the movies when Benjamin Stoloff selected her for the leading feminine role in "Speakeasy." So tonight's preview of the film will be in the nature of a reunion of the two sisters.

FAMOUS MUSIC MASTER HERE

Guy Harrison, guest conductor at the Metropolitan Theater this week is an Englishman and a graduate of Oxford University of London, as well as the Royal College of Music in London. In America eight years ago at the request of George Eastman of Rochester, N. Y., a music lover himself who had heard Mr. Harrison on the organ during one of his visits to London and decided he was the man to take charge of his new school of organ and piano. Mr. Harrison remained at the school until the opening of the Eastman Theater, five years ago, when he was appointed conductor of the Eastman Symphony Orchestra which has been famous throughout the country ever since.

When Publix took over the reins of the Eastman Theater last October, they realized the value of Mr. Harrison as an artist, and for the past few months he has been acting as guest conductor in their many theaters.

Bowdoin Sq. Will Have Talking Films

In keeping with its policy, the management of the Bowdoin Sq. Theater will install the latest mechanical equipment and talking pictures, including Vitaphone and the Movietone features. It will be remembered that the Bowdoin Sq Theater was one of the pioneers in the silent picture field, and on next Monday steps forth in a new dress, with "talkies."

This plan has been decided upon by the manager, R. A. Somerby. The camera that sees now has a voice, and this announcement will give the patrons an idea just how far talking pictures have developed. The management will offer only the best possible obtainable.

SHAKESPEARE PLAYS TO BE FILMED

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

ARE we in for a Shakespearean season in the talkies? John Barrymore has been assiduously making tests at Hamlet's soliloquy at the Warner Brothers' studio in Hollywood. He is frank in saying that if old Hamlet sounds as well over the microphone as he should we shall have him, ghost and everything, in the movies.

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, in town to take an active part in the Greenwood-Wertz Brothers-United Artists merger, are at the same time looking at costumes for "Taming of the Shrew." They were the first to have the hankering to bring the Bard of Avon into the talkies.

Who is next? What about "Macbeth" and "The Merchant of Venice"? We are not making a drive for Shakespearean plays, neither do we urge too sudden a change from movie thrillers to Shakespeare.

Heretofore, Shakespeare's sole claim to fame in the movies was "Romeo and Juliet." Remember Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, as the screen's great lovers, doing the balcony scene?

ONE of the expeditions into the archives of yesterday by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer brought forth Bayard Veiller's "Thirteenth Chair," a rattling good melodrama, which, when it was on the stage a year later was filmed. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer can easily discount that before the talkies' film and bring out another sensational melodrama.

What with "Madame X" and "The Trial of Mary Dugan," no wonder a watchful eye is being kept on all melodramas. Lon Chaney, who made a "bow" in the movies after a long absence, has successfully attained stardom by doing the leading role with Tod Browning and Elliott Clauson as directors.

MAURICE CHEVALIER seems destined to be as great a favorite with the New York theatre-going public as he is in Paris. Big Talkie, "The Innocents of Paris," is in some ways a disappointment, but Chevalier is the sensation of the picture and will be popular if he has a bit.

There is no doubt that his next film, a Guy Bolton operetta, which Ernest Lubitsch will direct, will be just the vehicle in which Whoever or not that interest will hold in the movie towns remains to be seen. What New York likes is not always a criterion of small-town taste.

FIND AUTO IN WHICH YOUTHS LEFT HOME

Brattleboro, Vt., May 3—A development today in the search for Raymond, 21, and Pearl Woodard, 15, step- of Thos. as Haverhill, was taken by unconsciousness in his bed early Tuesday morning, was the finding of the automobile in which the pair left town.

The car was found in North Adams by police there, who said it was abandoned because of a flat tire. It was left there Tuesday afternoon but as the police knew nothing of the assault, no particular attention was paid to the car.

He said his wife had their $5000 insurance policies issued on his life within a few weeks, but he declared he did not believe her guilty of the assault. She had been arrested.

"I would be willing to have her released from Newfane jail if she would give me back the $5000," he said. He said he and his wife had had warm arguments because his wife did not pay any money for board.

AUCTION BRIDGE

by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

FINESSING THE KING OF TRUMPS TO MAKE GAME

Auction Bidding—South passing, West bids one Diamond, North one Heart, and East one Spade. South passing, West correctly names his second suit, bidding two Clubs. North re-bids his Heart suit and East then assists his partner's Club bid by bidding three Clubs, which secures the contract.

Contract Bidding—At Contract, West would bid his two-suiter in the same manner and following East's assist of three Clubs, West should make the game bid of five Clubs, which should be the contract.

Play—North leads first the Spade K and then the Spade A. At a suit bid the lead of an Ace followed by the King indicates conventionally no more of the suit and ability and desire to ruff. With this hand, however, North holding no trumps with which to ruff, would mislead his partner by playing the Ace first followed by the King. North, therefore, finding himself in this situation, reverses the usual order and leads the Spade 10 first in sight or employed in the play. At the third trick North leads the Heart Q, which Declarer wins with his lone King. Declarer then leads the Diamond A, followed by a low Diamond which Dummy trumps. Dummy's return of the Heart A gives Declarer a Diamond discard. Declarer then leads the Club J and finesses. North showing a void Club suit Declarer leads Dummy's Spade Q, upon which he discards his only long diamond. Thereafter Declarer finesses Clubs twice more, capturing South's King, and takes the thirteenth trick with his high Diamond, making game on the hand.

Next Monday's article will show the bidding and play of another hand.

WHEN adenoids are to be removed the sooner this is done the better for the child's general health. After age of two or three the chances of recurrence are perhaps less than in infancy. Even infants stand the operation well, however.

For Club and Church

Martha Lee (of Science)

FOR years New England women have turned their cooking talents into good cash for their church societies and their clubs by serving extra good suppers at so much a plate—50c, 75c or even $1. They usually plan to clear from 150 to 500 profit on each plate according to the price of the supper and when this is multiplied by several hundred, it means a tidy sum.

I receive many, many requests for church supper suggestions and also inquiries on how much butter, how much potato, how much coffee should be allowed for 50 or maybe 100 people. So I've scurried around and collected menus for large numbers, charts showing which season to serve what, tables of weights and approximate measures and large quantity recipes that show the number of servings, the amount for each serving as well as the amount of ingredients required. So whether you want to serve 25 or 250, don't hesitate to write me for complete menus, suggestions and amounts.

If the committee are willing to do some of the cooking themselves, the profits will swell surprisingly. For instance, potato salad socially made from plain boiled potatoes, celery, green pepper and salad dressing saves real money over buying the ready-made variety. Baked ham costs at least 90c a pound, all cooked, but the whole ham can be baked to juicy deliciousness with little effort and great saving.

For instance, a ten pound ham covered with a paste of 1 cup of brown sugar, 4 tablespoons of flour, 1 teaspoon of mustard, 3 tablespoons of water and cooked with 2 tablespoons of whole cloves will cost about $3.20 including fuel and material. Allowing 2 pounds for shrinkage, let's say this will equal to about 8 pounds of cooked ham at 90c a pound will be $7.20—a saving of $4.00.

VARIOUS ROASTS

Roasts of all kinds are favored for large dinners as when skillfully carved, it is amazing how far the sliced meat will go. The local butcher will often lend a carving knife. If more men than women will attend the dinner, more meat will need to be allowed than for a reheated before serving.

And the kind of meat to be served depends upon the character of the company too. Some guests will be delighted with creamed chicken served over split biscuits while the men figure that this is about one-half a meal. Men like to see nice slices of solid meat.

In ordering meat which has a large amount of bone such as a rib roast of fowl, allow one-half a pound per person. With ham or leg of lamb which have a small bone, one-third pound per person will be sufficient. With tenderloin or meat loaf which is all solid meat, one-quarter pound should be allowed.

BUYING POTATOES

In buying potatoes, you can plan to serve about 100 people with one bushel. Of course, this will vary with the kind of potatoes to be served as if they are scalloped or creamed, they will go further than if boiled.

The average allowance for rolls is four for a man or two for a woman, perhaps only one.

There is nothing more delicious for these suppers than hot home-made rolls. They can be made earlier in the day if necessary and reheated before serving.

The amount of coffee needed for a large function depends again on the crowd as in general, men like a stronger coffee than women so where you can make fifty cups to the pound for women, you will need to figure forty cups to the pound for men, especially for smokers.

The one dessert always popular is pie and it is a good money-maker too, not half as expensive as ice cream, cake or other fancy desserts. A nice thick pumpkin pie with a bit of flavorful cheese is a real treat and can be made very inexpensively.

Here's a recipe for a meat loaf which will serve 216 people allowing one liberal slice to the person.

MEAT LOAF

36 lbs. hamburger.
6 whole eggs.
10 egg yolks.
1 lb. of onions.

Mix the salt, bread crumbs and onions with the meat. Beat the eggs slightly and add to the milk. Combine with the meat and mix thoroughly. Weigh out into loaf pans which have been well greased. Be careful to press the meat well into the corners of the pan and avoid having the center of the meat higher than the edges. Bake in a medium hot oven until the meat is done. This makes 9 5-lb. loaves, cutting 24 slices each.

Meat pie is always popular and will go far served with crisp biscuits:

MEAT PIE
(Serves 100)

20 lbs. stew meat.
½ c. onions.
1-3 c. salt.
100 biscuits.

Cut the meat in 1-inch cubes and cover with boiling water. Cook just below the boiling point. When the meat is almost tender, add the salt, onions and potatoes. Mix the flour to a paste with water and thicken the stock just before serving. Serve ½ c. of stew with 1 biscuit. The biscuit may be baked separately or the stew may be poured into baking pans, covered with biscuits and the biscuits baked in the oven.

Chicken is especially delicious fricasseed with hot biscuits, and I have an excellent recipe serving 150 from 12 lbs. of cooked chicken meat. Scalloped oysters is another of my treasures, and maraconi and cheese for 50.

Fifty lbs. of sweet potatoes will serve 100 people glazed by the following recipe.

GLAZED SWEET POTATOES

2 qts. water.

Steam and peel the potatoes. If a vegetable parer is available, the potatoes may be put through the machine before steaming. When done, put in shallow baking pans and pour a syrup made of the sugar, water and melted fat over them. Brown in a hot oven.

Two other excellent and delicious recipes that I have are carrot plum pudding to serve 25 and butterscotch pie filling to serve 160.

Just let me know the kind of dishes you think your prospective supper eaters would like and I'll be happy to send you as many as you can use.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Garden Girls

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

YES, both of them are garden girls, only how different! One actually loves the garden to the extent that she tends it and loves it and carefully watches each tiny shoot as it bashfully comes through the earth into the warm rays of the sun. And she knows each and every plant there, for hasn't she planted them with her own hands and loved the work of keeping the garden beautifully cared for until it's a glowing mass of loveliness?

But the other! She, too, loves a garden, but only as a background for her beautiful self. Someone else tends to all the beauty of the garden, that it may form a fitting frame for her. Not for her the grubby work of digging in the earth and tending the plants. No, indeed! Her dainty hands couldn't possibly be soiled by such labor!

If you had your choice, which one would you choose? I'm sure I know, and it would be a wise choice, too. One is self-sacrificing, loving, caring. The other, selfish, vain and, if I might say so, lazy.

So it's easy to see which one Love will find first. Naturally, there are some who love the cold, selfish beauty, but they soon tire, for beauty alone eventually palls, and Love seeks something deeper than mere beauty of face. Beauty of heart and soul are the real beauty which makes for happiness. So watch carefully and see which one of the garden girls you want to be like.

Dr. Bisch Talks on Action of Germs

By L. E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

THE importance of germs is becoming more and more manifest even to persons who are not familiar with the scientific principles underlying diseases.

No one can help being impressed when a child contracts diphtheria, for example, and sees the quick improvement and recovery which results from the injection of anti-toxin, all brought about by the fact that the diphtheria germ has been isolated and studied.

This point about isolating and studying the habits of various germs is the keynote to the problem of all infectious and contagious diseases. First it is necessary to find out what kind of a germ causes a certain disease. Next it is necessary, through chemical and other means, to isolate this germ away from the living tissues in which it grows, and make it grow at the experimenter's will.

After the scientist has studied the way the germ will prosper and also what tends to check its growth or kill the germ itself, or neutralize the poisons which the germ produces, then, you see, he possesses definite knowledge as to how to combat this germ when it takes hold of the human organism and produce disease.

The science which relates to the study of germs is called bacteriology.

It really had its beginnings in the latter part of the seventeenth century with the observations of Leeuwenhoek. Since then it has developed very rapidly and with the help of high-powered microscopes, and the patience and perseverance of men who have devoted their lives to this work, disease after disease is gradually being more thoroughly understood and their causes discovered.

We must bear in mind that we are surrounded everywhere by these tiny organisms, these bacteria, or germs, and could we see them we probably would be in a better position to fight them off. However, they float in the air, are to be found in dust and dirt of all kinds, and many varieties are lodged in the mouth and nasal cavities.

Not all germs are harmful, however. Some bacteria in fact are to be found in the soil and it is through their activity that vegetables and plants grow, all of which is most beneficial to the human race.

The beneficial germs are being studied with as much intensity as are all the harmful, disease germs. All disease germs thrive best in heat and moisture. Coldness and dryness are their worst enemies.

That is why doctors are forever preaching to their patients to breathe plenty of fresh, cold air, to keep the window open at night, and to stay out of places where there is warm moisture as much as possible.

It is a well-known fact that there are certain individuals who happen to be less susceptible to the ravages of certain diseases than are others. This is a kind of natural immunity.

Most of us, on the other hand, are not immune to any of the disease producing germs and therefore it is wise that one create what is known as acquired immunity. Acquired immunity is produced by vaccination or injection of certain chemical substances which have been originally produced through the action of the germ themselves, but which ward off the disease germs and their poison, should they be introduced into the system.

Nowadays we know that an acquired immunity may be set up in this way against diphtheria, typhoid fever, smallpox and a few others.

The sensible man and woman consults his physician and has himself made as immune as possible to as many diseases as possible.

"What's wrong, Maurice? You seem so down."

No, he couldn't tell her. But he envied Laney Micks, who could scowl and swear out his troubles to be met by such maternal calm.

They came up through the back and there was Ruth.

"So there you are!" said Mrs. Micks. "Well, where have you been?"

"Saez took us driving."

"I don't think Mrs. Bautizo liked your going away. It wasn't very polite."

Ruth said nothing.

"Well," sighed Mrs. Micks, "I can't help it. You're just like your father. I'm going to bed."

Mr. Nortz stood irresolute. He supposed Ruth was simply waiting for him to go. She said surprisingly, "Are you tired, Maurice?"

"No, not at all," he claimed. "Where did you go tonight?"

"You'll hear all about it tomorrow."

"Why, what happened?"

"Something pretty nasty."

"Something about Ramon!" he demanded.

Ruth smiled slightly. "Oh, no, nothing like that."

"I knew there was nothing in that," declared Mr. Nortz.

"Who said there was nothing in that," declared Mr. Nortz.

"Who said there was?"

"People talking."

"Do they think he's having an affair with me?"

"I guess so."

"Do you think so?"

Mr. Nortz looked at her a moment. "I love you," he said.

"Maurice, don't!"

"No wonder Mrs. Fletcher hates me," shrugged Ruth helplessly. "Why do you want to do it, Maurice? Are you sorry for me because of things people say?"

"I loved you long before any one said anything," he answered literally. "I didn't speak about it before because I wasn't sure you weren't going to marry Ramon, or something. Maybe you ought to. He could give you everything. Pearls and things. Give you a setting. Beautiful women need things, ought to have them. That is, if you loved him. Love comes first even so. And I don't think you do. And then there were one or two personal matters, difficulties of my own. I didn't think it would be altogether honorable of me to speak to you until I settled them."

"Oh, Maurice dear, you're such a fool! Honestly, I could weep"—

Mr. Nortz' hands shook slightly. "There has never been anything between Mary and me," he said in low voice, "except an old friendship that I valued highly."

His composure had gone. He sat there very white, staring at her.

"You smashed a thing which had made both of you happy for years, something which was almost her whole life, and a good part of yours, because you made a mistake about me. And what are you going to do now?"

"I'm going to marry you," he said doggedly. "Ruth, honey—"

"I'm sorry," she said.

She arose and went out. He followed her quickly.

"You know, of course," she said, "they're right, those people."

"What people?"

"The ones who say I'm having an affair with him."

"I don't know why you're saying this," said Mr. Nortz, "but I know it isn't true."

"I'm not a liar, Maurice."

They came past the corner of the Casa Vivienda and there was still a light on in the offices. "Wait just a moment," said Ruth.

She left him, going up the steps. Mr. Nortz stood still at the corner, nerveless. Her return made him start.

"Some thing happened at Santa Catalina tonight," said Ruth troubled. "Daddy went. He shouldn't have. he . . ."

He turned slowly. "Might I kiss you?" he asked.

"Yes, Maurice."

He released her. "And I just wanted to tell you," he said, "that—that no one will ever know. What you've told me, I mean. That is—"

"Thank you, Maurice."

A sense of the fatuousness of them both, or irony, of cruel, devastating laughter welled up in her.

Hilario Ruiz came to Santa Catalina Christmas night.

He had to find his uncle, for he was mortally certain that his simple-minded and undependable uncle, who had long been a source of information to him, was in danger.

If he could once get hold of Domingo and hear what he knew, he would throw caution to the winds and ride straight to San Mario and Mr. Micks.

He was so preoccupied that he only saw something which paralyzed him completely and let his engine stall. He jerked the brakes frantically and stared.

Up there, in the dim moonlight, where the Cabarias river bridge crossed, there wasn't any bridge!

There was nothing, nothing at all, except, now he looked, the tiny gleam of a small fire over where the water tower must be.

He struggled to start his engine and succeeded, climbed the arroyo noisily, jolted away on top, careless now of anything except getting to Santa Catalina.

He rounded a turn and had to pull up because a strayed horse was in the trail, standing stupidly in the shadows and moonlight. Exasperated, he reached down and switched on his headlights to scare the animal away. The flood of radiance disclosed, to his surprise, that the horse was saddled. He had found his Uncle Domingo all right.

"Javier Duarte," the man said at the bridge. "I am Javier Duarte, Mr. Micks."

At first glance there was something absurd about him, as he pointed out on the great void where the Cabarias river bridge had been.

Laney Micks hadn't even been able to find out much of anything, though a boy from Santa Catalina brought him a penciled note saying that Domingo Ruiz was coming to see him. Domingo Ruiz hadn't chosen to come.

"Well, how do you like it?" he asked the Duarte person disagreeably.

"A shocking disaster," said Javier Duarte. "Mr. Bautizo heard about it on his arrival last night and sent me down to see if there was anything to be done. Perhaps you could spare me a few minutes on some instructions from Mr. Bautizo."

Laney Micks remained standing. "You have signed instructions from Mr. Bautizo, I suppose?"

"Not signed instructions, Mr. Micks, but—"

"I don't know you, Mr. Duarte, so I don't see how I can either discuss this matter with you or receive any orders."

"Your discretion," said Javier Duarte pleasantly, "is commendable. One can't be too careful, Mr. Micks. The reason that I have no papers is that none is really necessary. Needless to say, for reasons of policy, we wish to keep this accident out of the papers as much as possible. It's not good for the company's prestige, Mr. Micks."

"If you'd say what you mean, I'd probably understand you better," Laney Micks pointed out. "As it is, if this is an accident, I don't see why it should damage any one's prestige. Accidents happen."

"Exactly," agreed Javier Duarte, pleased. "Mr. Bautizo would like you to stress that note in your report. As an examining engineer, and one well known in Cuba, your opinion would no doubt largely determine the newspaper accounts."

"You want me, then, to emphasize the fact that this was an unforeseen, unpreventable accident?"

"Exactly, Mr. Micks," said Javier Duarte, "just a simple statement of the truth."

"I guess you can count on a simple statement of the truth. Tell Mr. Bautizo I'm doing my best to get at the simple truth for him, and it looks to me as if it wouldn't be long now. Central Baria is in a bad way, I guess."

"That is unfortunate," admitted Javier Duarte. "Well, we shall have to try to make some arrangement with Central Baria, but it's difficult, for that recent fire at Flores del Alba puts San Mario a little short on cane, too, doesn't it?"

"Do you mean to say," asked Laney Micks, "that you didn't guarantee maintenance of their right of way? Well, how much did you have to pay Muriedas for that?"

"Really, Mr. Micks, what an implication! We simply handed over the railroad facilities. As it stood, Mr. Micks, as it stood. We couldn't, naturally, undertake to restore completely work which the failure of the former Central Marin had left neglected for a number of years. We gave them our engineers' reports, made, as you know and believe with your consent, while you were on your vacation, Mr. Micks. Central Baria accepted them, perfectly understanding the risk, if any."

"If any," agreed Laney Micks, staring at the stupendous twisted ruin of the valley. "Signed," he said suddenly, "Joseph Arnold, consulting engineer."

"Mr. Arnold found it in good condition last summer."

"And what do you think now?"

Javier Duarte shrugged. "Sometimes," he said, "one can't foresee."

"Arnold!" observed Laney Micks pensively. "I don't believe he doesn't know anything so he must be just a plain timeskunk."

"Granted his mistakes, Mr. Micks," said Javier Duarte carefully, "the real point is that it would make things very embarrassing for the company to have it pointed out publicly, Mr. Bautizo, therefore, requests you to avoid any reference to the possibility of misjudgment on Mr. Arnold's part."

"Duarte, I have a funny feeling that if you stick around here much longer, you'll find your face pushed in. Now, get out!"

Javier Duarte's composure deserted him grotesquely, faced with that dark rage. He wheeled about, with Laney Micks bounding easily behind, and raced up the track. "Help!" he shouted. "Help!"

Laney Micks overtook him vindictively, and swinging his right foot, kicked him fairly off his feet onto his face between the rails.

He turned about and went back to the gas car. "Just pick that up and take it home," he said to the amazed driver.

He moved toward the lean-to. "How about some breakfast, Tomayo?"

"Who was that?" asked Tomayo, gaping.

"Mr. Javier Duarte. Fine upstanding young fellow."

Muriedas of Central Baria was concerned. "He's a very big man, senor. We know him—"

Laney Micks stared Muriedas up and down. "Well," he said, "won't a very big man look funny eating off a shelf!"

The VOICE of the City by GILBERT ROGERS

CHAPTER V.

FOR a little space, Biff Myers looked at the occupants of the room, his surly smile on his face.

For his part, Biff strove to conceal his disappointment. It was not that he expected to walk in and find Bobby Doyle there before him; he would, in fact, have been considerably astonished had this been the case. But as he glanced around, he felt that these people knew no more than he did concerning Doyle's whereabouts. If they knew anything, he trusted to his own powers to find it out, but he saw nothing to arouse his suspicion.

"Well, well, well," he got out with a hard laugh. "Everybody here but the guy I'm lookin' for."

"Do you actually think Bobby's coming here?" Beebe asked, amazed at her own steady voice. But something drove her now like an obsession. She felt she could do anything, conquer most.

"Listen, Cutie," he said, "hate me—swear at me—call me anything you like. But don't try to kid me! You know something. I can tell that by looking at you. Come on now—talk fast!"

"We don't know a thing about him, except that he ain't such a sap to walk in here," Johnny blurted out.

"I'm not talkin' to you," said Biff, "and until I do, keep your trap shut!" He swung back to Beebe, feeling somehow that she was the leader here. "Now then! You got ideas where Bobb, Doyle is?"

"No."

He gave a short, disgruntled laugh. "I think the whole bunch of you are liars. And don't forget something. There's a law about aiding and abetting. You may all do a stretch before I'm through." At that instant, as if for the first time, his eye fell on Martha. He knew the rest. Knew Mary even, but this was a face that was strange to him.

AN INGENIOUS LIE

"Who are you?" he barked.

"I'm Martha Haley," she answered in a stammer.

"You are, huh? What are you doing here?"

Beebe came to her rescue. "She's the girl who cleans up the rooms on these two floors," she explained.

Again Biff's hopes were dashed, though they were not strong at this point. Still he noticed how Martha was dressed, and it occurred to him that even among the girls that keep you sweet and dainty comtary to invite the cleaning woman to come in for a social chat.

Yet he was so disheartened that if he hadn't recalled Dapper Don Wilkes's astonishing offer he would have left before this. Only the memory of that kept him still trying, still hoping to force some admission, or discover some clue.

Had he guessed that he sat within 10 feet of the man he trailed, Biff Myers would have heart failure, or out of shame. But the nervous tension in the air he dismissed as a tribute to authority. He looked around and stared at Beebe once more.

"What's this woman doing here at this time of night—all dressed up!" he demanded with unexpected sharpness.

"Why, I'm not dressed up!" she protested, amazed at the question. "I was just sitting around with this mob," he growled. "Good night, the rest of you. Have a lot of fun while you can, because your friend Bobby is going back, and I'm going to take him—chained right to this wrist. Shoot that in your arm, Hop!"

The door banged behind him.

Mary, rising to her feet, swayed as if she were going to faint. Johnny caught her. His own face was a sickly white.

Beebe opened the door. There was no one there. She hurried back to lift the sofa lid, and Bobby Doyle climbed out.

No one spoke now. The visit of Biff had galvanized them into a sudden furious energy. They made their plans in whispers.

Beebe, peeping through the curtain, could make out the dim shape of a man in the doorway across the street. This time she knew it was Biff. He hadn't given up yet. She whispered goodby to Johnny as he started out, and saw him presently on his way. Still he noticed how Martha was dressed, and it occurred to him that even among the girls that keep you sweet and dainty comtary to invite the cleaning woman to come in for a social chat.

THEY GOT AWAY

Bobby had gone into the next room with the clothes that Martha had bought. He pulled on the old black silk dress, and drew the shawl down around his head. He stared at himself in the mirror set in the bathroom door. He was astonished. He knew he could fool nine people out of ten. Most of them wouldn't give him a second glance.

When he came out, Martha was waiting. He touched Beebe's hands briefly, nodded at Mary, trying hard to smile, but his face was grim. Beebe shook her head when he seemed about to linger. He turned and started down the stairs.

She watched now at the window with nerves that were like delicate wires. Mary, her face white in her hands, was on the sofa, scarcely breathing.

It seemed to take them a long time to reach the street. They were on it at last. Now Beebe's eyes focused on the silent dark figure in the doorway. He was looking towards them. She could see that. But he stood where he was. They moved on down the street, quite slowly, and Beebe breathed a prayer of unutterable gratitude.

As for Bobby Doyle, it was impossible to describe how he felt. Tired from the long strain he had undergone, emotionally exhausted by this brief meeting with Beebe, he could not even think clearly. He put himself into Martha's hands and trusted to luck.

They had to pause for traffic two blocks away. Out of the gloom came a policeman. Bobby's fists tightened. He could hear his heart beating.

REFUGE AT LAST

But the officer only halted traffic, helped them across, while it was Martha whose knees literally knocked together, who could not summon her breath to thank him.

The way seemed endless. Eighth avenue at last, then Ninth, under the dark elevated, and then, at last, Tenth itself. Bobby breathed easier now. There had been no mishaps, and there was less danger in this neighborhood of being spotted.

The dingy frame building loomed before them at last. Martha examined the address she had written down, to make sure. In all this time she had not spoken. They entered through the unlocked door, climbed up through the gloom with its stale smells, until they were on the third floor. Martha knocked. The door mapped open and Johnny the Hop stood before them.

It was Martha Haley's hour. She heard them praise her, was forced to take the five dollar bill Johnny thrust out towards her, and went home in the obscurity with her poor head singing with its one memory of triumph.

Alone with Johnny in the disordered room, with its cheap bed, its ancient washstand and dresser, Bobby looked around.

"So this is where I'm goin' to live?" he inquired.

Johnny shook his head and grinned broadly. "Not much! You haven't seen anything yet." He pulled the bed away from the wall quickly, and getting down on his hands and knees, fumbled at the dirty wall. Slowly he pushed up a small panel.

"Just look up there," said Johnny.

Bobby saw a ladder. He climbed it, found himself in a small attic with a mattress and some blankets thrown on the floor. Except for a few magazines and a half-smoked pack of cigarettes there was nothing in the room. Through a dormer window at the end of the attic the dim moonlight struggled through.

"A bootlegger built this nearly five years ago," Johnny explained. "You can lie hid here without anything to worry you."

"I'm going to beat them, all right!" Bobby declared, as he began to pull off the clothes that hampered him.

"Sure you are, Kid!" Johnny agreed.

Even Biff Myers could not have denied that. There was, however, in the big town of New York, one man who would have said the opposite.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

What Has Happened So Far

Bobby Doyle, framed by the Wilkes gang and sentenced to prison for 20 years for killing a policeman, is aided to escape from jail by his fiancee, Beebe Barrett, with whom Bobby's sister, Mary, lives. Beebe is assisted by Johnny the Hop. Inspector Wilmot and Biff Myers are visited by Dapper Don Wilkes, leader of the gang, who offers to donate $5000 to the family of the murdered policeman, if they will fail to capture Bobby. Meanwhile Bobby has reached Beebe's apartment in safety. The alarm is given. Bobby has hardly time to hide himself in a hollow sofa before Biff Myers appears.

Callouses
and Burning Soles

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads for Callouses end pain in one minute by stop the friction and pressure of shoes and are soothing and healing. Removing callouses with harsh liquids or plasters is unsafe—often causing acid burn. Zino-pads are thin, protective. At all drug, shoe and dept. stores—35c box.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Help Strangers in the Hub

Boston has a heart, a desire to lend a helping hand, and it is through the Travelers' Aid Society that the stranger within our gates most often learns this fact.

Through the society, no less than 28,000 persons received assistance last year—the young and the aged, the mother with small children, the infirm and the perplexed—many of these in dire need.

This number alone testifies to the importance to the community of this service. Were it possible to recount all the drama and heart-throbs of the railroad stations and steamship docks, no one could fail to be impressed.

Besides maintaining an information bureau for all classes of travelers and extending aid by whomever requested, without regard to age, race, class, creed or sex, without fee or gratuity, the Travelers' Aid Society also makes it its business to keep a lookout for those who ought to have help but do not ask it.

It protects the inexperienced, saves young women and girls from mishap, safeguards children traveling alone, secures attention for the ill, is friend and counselor to immigrants, gives special attention to migrating families, finds runaways and advises them, and co-operates with other societies here and elsewhere.

As a single example of why more funds are constantly needed, the annual report cites the increasing complexity of modern travel, requiring it to place agents wherever bus lines arrive and depart. Although there is no "drive" for funds it is a worthy cause and merits consideration, in which connection it may be stated that John L. Grandin, 31 Milk st., is the treasurer.

Regret Dr. Wilson's Going

After 22 years of unselfish and devoted public service, Dr. Edmund W. Wilson has severed his connection with the Boston City Hospital to take up new work in New York.

Efficiency, faithfulness and unfailing courtesy lifted Dr. Wilson from the position of interne which he accepted immediately on graduation from medical school, to that of assistant superintendent of one of the greatest medical institutions in the country.

As an executive Dr. Wilson established a brilliant record, having ever at heart the welfare of the citizens of Boston, and the sick and maimed of any other communities who came within his jurisdiction.

He was a faithful public servant, and Boston's loss is New York's gain.

The Boston Evening American joins in saying: Hail and farewell.

No 'Call Money' Worry

MRS. DE ANGELO AT WORK

There are many kinds of worry in our world.

The bootlegger is afraid he will be caught.

The prohibitionist is afraid the bootlegger WON'T be caught.

The fool that patronizes the bootlegger is afraid he will be poisoned—he probably WILL in time.

The stock gambler worries about the high price charged for money with which to gamble.

All this passes over the head of Mrs. De Angelo, whom you see in this picture.

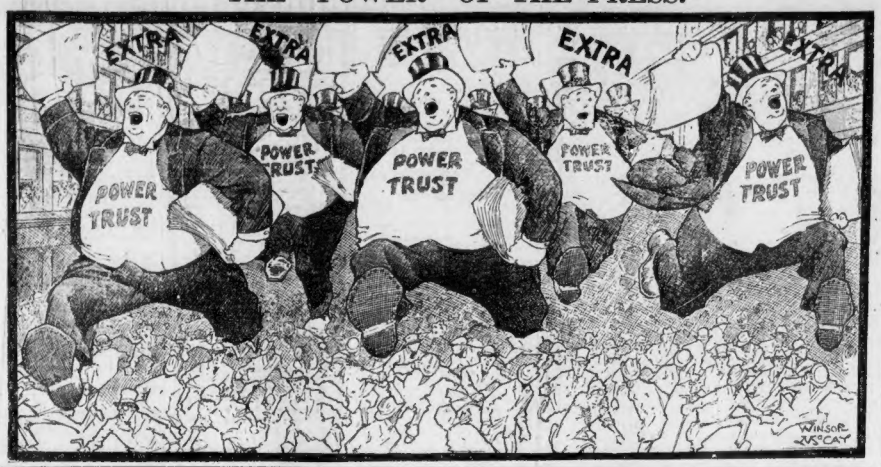
She supports her children and her husband, who is ill and out of work, by scrubbing and cleaning twenty-six offices every night, six days a week. She is paid $13 a week for that work.

Mrs. De Angelo "manages" because she is a fast, hard worker. She is able to take care of the children, mend their clothes, cook for them and her husband, and wash up the twenty-six offices in an office building while the children are asleep.

This picture, illustrating an interesting article by Helen Hall and Irene Hickok Nelon, in the "Survey," is printed to remind you that we are not ALL alike.

It is fortunate for the world that many are willing to work hard, when they might easily be doing something unpleasant to others.

THE "POWER" OF THE PRESS!



The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

AS an old established member of the inhuman climate, we notify the revenue agents that the time has now arrived to take spring tonic and that we are not responsible for contents.

Not being favorably mentioned in Who's Hootch as an authority on staggering and its ramifications, nevertheless we hold that Grandmother's spring tonic is not a contraband oil.

Nobody knew what Granny put in that vernal concoction. But one drop of it would nickel-plate an iceberg, and two drops would make a member of the House of David loh his boyish whiskers.

Twelve drops was the jury that decided whether you would live or pass on to your great reward offered by the Wells-Fargo for apprehension and conviction.

The old man always drank his from a saucer and then bit the dish in half.

The ingredients were mysterious. Granny wore smoked glasses when brewing it. Not seeing what she was doing, she would not be compelled to testify against herself.

The first taste was that of sassafras struggling with the weather reports. The second sip was reminiscent of the early triumphs of the Macedonian flying phalanx, slightly diluted with a decision of the Supreme Court.

If you lasted until the third snifter, which was strong enough to cause a vacuum cleaner to reverse itself and blow dust all over the house, you were convinced that Granny had solved the mathematical equation which reduced the electric chair to liquid measure.

Nobody ever took a fourth helping of the belligerent syrup. Except Granny.

She lived before the days of amendments and got by on her constitution.

The purpose of all spring tonics was to thin the blood. A bottle of Granny's thinner would have converted the Great Wall of China into the gauziest of gossamer.

If St. George had the choice of dragons or Granny's spring tonic he would have chosen the flaming lizards.

Like Vesuvius, it was fire and soup in one.

Grandpop took his tonic while seated on the back porch in his rocker. He would take a snorter, blink his eyes, work his ears and say, "There's a lot of tunnels on this railroad."

There was only one thing about Granny's spring tonic that the neighborhood could not figure out. We never were sure whether she rated a nurse's diploma or a card in the bartenders' union.

Save Your Gasoline

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

HOW would an association for prevention of the waste of gasoline do? If you have not noticed that there is much waste of that kind, open your eyes and look about a little when you are in a place where automobiles stand waiting. "Idling engines" are no uncommon sight.

There are altogether too many drivers who let the gas flow while they stop to talk, and often the power thus thrown away thorugh thoughtlessness, carelessness, or laziness, would have driven the machine a mile or more. It would be interesting and perhaps startling to ascertain by actual observation how much gas is consumed needlessly as a consequence of the delays by city traffic laws.

Some drivers are too eager to get the jump the instant the signals change and so they burn their engines spraying away the precious oil as if it were as unlimited as air.

There has been lately some bad advice given about spending as a more promising road to success than saving. Fallacies like that have a fatal attraction for many minds.

They spread like weeds and give rise to blind recklessness, which makes itself felt on all sides by encouraging the almost criminal waste of basic materials which anyone may see going on around him.

There is no need of pessimism concerning the supply of gasoline; no doubt we shall have enough for a long time to come, if we use it with reasonable economy. But, Prof. R. B. Smith, of Colgate University, says:

"No matter how many more fields we discover, how deep we dig our wells, there must be a limit somewhere; and yet there seems to be no limit to the number of automobiles we can build and sell. The curve of production of gasoline from native sources is sure to fall while that of motor cars is rising."

But there is another waste of a different origin, depending, not on reckless use of gasoline, but on the need of greater efficiency in engines. How much could be saved in this way is at present simply a speculative question. Whether inventors and constructors are seriously studying the problem, with a determination to put it through to a favorable solution, is another speculative question.

Someone, according to Professor Smith, has made a calculation, which he does not guarantee to be correct, that we are getting only about 4 per cent of efficiency out of our automotive engines, and he remarks that "the steam engineer and the electrical engineer, the chemical manufacturer, etc., would feel that 8 4 per cent yield on any process was pretty small."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

IF I were a man I'd be getting half as much again for the work I do.

Does that make me mad?

It did once, when I was a green worker.

It doesn't now, for I understand the reason behind that discrimination against women.

AND I THINK IT'S RIGHT!

Militant Mamas are always raising a fuss about the "unfair deal" which females get in industry. But this cause is plain. You're paid in this world, not only for your usefulness as an individual but, even more, for your usefulness as a member of the team.

AS INDIVIDUALS WOMEN MAY BE HIGHLY EFFICIENT, BUT AS TEAM WORKERS THEY ARE GENERALLY A WASHOUT.

They refuse to forget themselves and play ball—

THEY PERSONALIZE.

The woman who doesn't view her job, and everything pertaining to her job, from the purely personal angle is about as rare as the dodo.

And you can't blame the girls. Since the first fire was lighted in the first cavewoman's world she has been 100 per cent personal.

HOMES ARE LIMITED MONARCHIES—little kingdoms cut off from all the rest of the world.

Within such kingdoms—or rather, queendoms—every act is bound to have a personal implication.

If Papa crabs at Mama, or Jim my sassez Gram, they aren't doing it for the general good of the Steel Trust. They're crabbing at Mama and sassing Gram.

Naturally, ladies take things the way they sound and act accordingly.

Also, naturally, when they crashed into industry they thought the same old technique would work. Men were men—what worked in the home should work in the office.

But it didn't.

A man in the home is—a man in the home. But a man in an office is something else again. He is part of something infinitely greater than himself. He is part of WORK. And he is valuable inasmuch as he becomes a useful cog in the machinery of WORK.

Also, he tests the value of his assistants by the same standards.

Ladies who stick out like sore thumbs in the office atmosphere are a nuisance, however efficient they may be as individuals. And unfortunately most women, with their highly personalized attitude, still do stick out like sore thumbs in industry.

Women, in spite of their technical skill, ARE STILL UNTRAINED WORKERS — UNTRAINED IN THAT MOST VALUABLE OF ALL REQUISITES, SELF-CONTROL.

And because of this, industry penalizes them by paying them less than men.

Very often the man worker is much more stupid than the woman who labors at his side, but his value to the boss is greater because he knows how to do something which she doesn't—he knows how to work in with the team.

But aren't there thousands of women who can play ball as well as men? There are! I'M ONE OF THEM! And yet we're paid less than men for exactly the same amount and quality of work. But that's what we have to expect. We're not Elsie, or Mary or Kate, or Jess to the Boss. We're SHE'S. And we stand or fall with our sex.

Wherefore, I plead, sisters, for the luvva Mike get wise to yourselves and begin to act INCORPORATED. THEN MAYBE I'LL GET A RAISE!

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

AS long as a man confines his conversation to flattery and baby talk, he need never worry about being "misunderstood" by a woman.

* * *

At 20, a man is convinced that he'll begin to decay in about five more years; at 40, he figures that he can relax and begin to LIVE in about five more years.

* * *

Most of a man's "spring cleaning" consists in clearing out the corners of his heart, dusting off his conscience, and throwing out last year's flirtations so as to make room for a few brand new ones.

* * *

In the modern love story, the heroine always finds that the most effective way to make a man love her is by ASKING him to. But in real life, men and dreams still "go by contraries," and the surest and quickest way to make any man love you is to ask him NOT to.

* * *

Love may live on hope longer than gratitude; but it positively thrives and FLOURISHES on a judicious mixture of doubt, curiosity and suspense.

* * *

Trying to make some husbands look ornamental in evening clothes is like dolling up bath towels with an embroidered monogram. The word "useful" is written all over them.

The average married man's idea of heaven is probably a place where nobody will call him for breakfast, tidy up his desk or tell him how to drive the car.

A man always hates to admit, even to himself, that late parties, early strawberries, and new spring love affairs no longer agree with him.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 6—Thoughts while strolling: What's become of those de luxe grocery stores of ten years ago? Max Figman, the actor. Rarely hear the yell of a newsie anymore. Save for the fake extras. Noel Coward's padded shoulders. E. F. Albee's ministerial mien. Leonard Bergman's swift walk.

Those snub-nosed freckled ragamuffins in Chaplin shoes with their harmonicas. A. Warrendorf, the florist. Once in a wheel chair. Now lively as a cricket. Wonder if those "fresh every minute" candy stores are on the level. Another 5 and 10 on the avenue. And limousines at the curb.

Always a missing letter or so in a chop suey electric sign. Ladies in sea green stockings. Deviled roast bones and Irish stew—Dublin style. And me with four yanked fangs inhaling soup. A. E. Matthews, who, if not the most finished actor in town, is pretty near it. A tenement child perched on a block of ice in a heat-ridden block.

H. I. Phillips, a New Haven, Ct., boy, who made good in the city. Who remembers when New York had plenty of permanent sidewalks? A motor boat store. Lon Chaney doesn't crawl around in his pictures any more. He has gone Tuxedo. Freuh, the caricaturist. The beggar with a victrola around his neck.

Mrs. Jerome Napoleon—without a Bonrod book. A stray dog expectantly watching a butcher shop—tail wagging furiously. Wade McGrath, the uptown hotel man. A bus from the coast and everybody hops out stretching. Clean cut young men at bank desks. Insolent taxi drivers can wild in this town and timid old ladies are bawled out for jaywalking.

A bleak jobbing house district. Shuttered windows and venerable clerks with whinnying laughs, silk hats and green eyeshades. Men who sit motionless for hours on fire plugs. Those wooden Venetian bridges in front of building excavations. John Anderson, the youthful dramatic critic.

Literary and Pleasure Clubs—devoted to gambling. Where cops often buzz for the wagon and everybody takes a ride. The glitter of Broadway again—like the golden rift in a sable sky. The theater hour deep-dish jam. And now to pry through it. Leering as I pry!

A STIMULATED gentleman on a wager went home the other night from a night club and returned with a bottle of champagne openly exposed in each hand. He was in evening dress and passed four policemen, which proves nothing save a touch of fatheadedness.

THEY report the only person to make important money in the night club racket is a fellow who never took a drink of intoxicants. All the rest have been rendered hors, as the French say, du combat.

A COMPANY is organizing to publish again the Old Cap Collier and Diamond Dick type of weeklies at 10 cents. If done in a modern manner, it believed they will find a big sale, but they will not. In an era producing a Lindberg, the most glamorously fictionized heroes are about as exciting as a water cress exhibit.

THE movies killed off the penny dreadfuls. Youth no longer cares for pimperfectly puritanical heroines nor heroes grappling on a cliff edge with top-booted villains.

EVERY writer has at least one word he misspells all his writing days. Among a group of ten the other day two words most difficult for the majority were "received" and "occasion."

"I TOOK advantage of a sale in a fur shop near 42d street," writes Bronka A. "and bought a coat for my wife for $198. A fur appraiser tells me it is worth $30. What should I do?"

Catch a moth and slip it through the keyhole in the front door and run like everything.

A SOCIETY reporter states with a patronizing pat New York newspapermen, for the first time in history, are being accepted by society, and several have achieved the Social Register. As a member of the younger Grand Central Station set I resent such sycophancy. The average newspaperman wouldn't become a member of society if especially invited by Otto Kahn or his brother Aghs.
